SAYS FARM INSURANCE RATES TOO HIGH

CONGRESSMAN BRAND ASKS GOVERNOR TO INVESTIGATE

Claims An Insurance Trust Is Being Formed and That Increases Smack of Monopoly—Interested Parties Say Rates Are Too Low and That Companies Have Been Operated At a Loss.

State investigation of insurance rates, following a reported "50 per cent increase" in rates on farm property, has been asked of Governor Donahey by Congressman Charles Brand, of Urbana.

The increase contained in the new rate schedules of the insurance companies is "unwarranted," Congressman Brand said, and smacks of a monopoly. He attacks the "rate making bureau" of insurance companies in the state, in his letter to the governor, and charges that an "insurance trust" is being formed.

Judge Harry Conn, state director of insurance, said he would investigate any complaint on insurance rates made by anyone. He said that no complaint had been made for some time. Insurance companies published a new rate schedule effective July 1, which contains some increases on farm property.

Congressman Brand has large farm holdings in the Seventh Congressional district, which he represents, and says insurance agents there confirm the reports that increases of 20 to 50 per cent are being made on all classes of farm property.

Insurance men say most companies writing farm insurance in Ohio had been operating at a loss on this business in the last five years and that the rates were too low. Ohio rates are the lowest in any state in the west, records of the Ohio inspection bureau, the clearing house for Ohio insurance, show.

Rates on farm buildings have been too low for some years, and the fire hazards meantime, have increased enormously, they say. The increased rate put into effect July 1, leaves Ohio with the cheapest fire insurance rates in the west, and as low as any state which publishes the schedules.

Heavy losses have caused many companies to withdraw entirely from the field of fire insurance for farms, and have caused some counties to be stricken off their lists entirely.

Records at the Ohio inspection bureau reveal that rates on barns and stables generally have gone up, while rates on houses in the country have been reduced, in the new schedule. No general statewide schedule was published prior to this year.

Last year, however, the charge generally made was $1 per $100 valuation for three years insurance on a frame farm house or barn. Rates on the same frame house this year are 85 cents for three years on a frame house, and $1.50 on a barn, for three years.

A reduction of ten cents per $100 valuation is made if the building is equipped with lightning rods, and approved roofs, brick construction and other means to prevent fires are covered by lower rate schedules. This is insurance for fire and lightning only.

Tornado insurance has gone up considerably this year, but that was influenced largely by the Lorain tornado and several other storms which did extensive wind damage last year, it was said. This is a variable rate, changing almost annually.

Insurance companies are obliged by law to fix uniform rate schedules, R. E. Julian, assistant manager of the bureau, said. The inspection bureau is maintained by insurance companies and offers quasi-state control over insurance rates. These rates must be raised or lowered at the direction of the state department of insurance.

There has been no indication that the rates in Ohio are too high, however, Judge Conn said. No complaints have been made. Department records also show heavy losses have been taken on farm property insurance by companies in the state during the past few years.

Ohio rates are lower than in any other state in the country except one or two eastern states which require insurance up to the full value of the property which is not required here, Eugene F. Gallagher, superintendent of the service department of the Ohio inspection bureau, said.

Director Conn said that he saw "no need for a state investigation" now, but that if one was asked he would very gladly look into the rates on farm property.

RIPE OLD AGE

George Ethington Civil War Veteran Died at Home of Daughter in Columbus.

George Ethington, 85, Civil war veteran died Wednesday night, July 22, at the home of his granddaughter Mrs. E. D. Penn, 23 Blenheim Road, Columbus. He resided with his daughter, Mrs. Earl B. Noggle, Ashville, and was visiting his granddaughter at the time of his death. He is survived also by five other daughters; Mrs. Lloyd Schisler and Miss Ruth Essington, of Columbus; Mrs. Lewis Bartley, of Circleville, and Mrs. Jacob Glick and Mrs. J. M. Johnson, also of Ashville and several other grandchildren.

The body was taken to the home of his daughter in Ashville where funeral services will be held Saturday.

SHE'S A REAL COWGIRL

Cowgirls do exist outside the pages of fiction and away from the motion picture camera. They ride and rope with the best of the "boys" in chaps and stetsons and, in fact, they exceed in skill and daring some of the male "busters" of the range. Many of these women riders will participate in the Chicago roundup and world's championship rodeo which will be held in Grank park stadium beginning August 15. Among the most famous of these is Ruth Roach of Fort Worth, Texas. Her daring as a rider has become proverbial as a result of dashing exhibitions of skill in the saddle at previous rodeos.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason and children, Miss Louise and John, who have been away on a vacation visiting relatives in Indiana, have returned home. Mr. Mason attended the National Retail Furniture Dealers' convention in Chicago, Illinois.

Celebrating his ninety-third birthday, Col. Lee Crandall, at the left, took his friend, Ezra Meeker, right, ninety-four, to the 101 Ranch show in Washington to meet Chief Good Elk, one hundred four. These three old timers, whose ages aggregate nearly 300 years, swapped many stories of the early western pioneer days.

THE JAZZ KING TED LEWIS IN LONDON TOWN

Theodore Friedman Gets Wonderful Reception in World Metropolis.

Ted Lewis (Theodore Friedman) son of Mrs. B. Friedman, of this city, who recently went to London, England, for a six weeks' engagement at the Hippodrome, made a great hit. The amusement page of the New York Sun in a recent issue says:

"Ted Lewis and his band began this week an engagement as the feature attraction at the London Hippodrome, following the sensational success of his first week at Piccadilly Revels and the Kit-Kat club where he opened July 6.

"This is Lewis' first London appearance, and his original Jazz interpretations have taken London theatergoers and society, which flocks to the exclusive Kit-Kat club by storm. William Morris, who is managing his London engagement, cables that his success has been equalled by but few American stars in London."

FINED $100.

Charles Canter, or near Clearport, was fined $100 and costs this morning by Mayor Alspach when he pleaded guilty to the charge of possessing a still. Canter was arrested at 1:30 this morning at the nearby home of his father after Sheriff McNaghten's raiding crew had searched the son's home in his absence and discovered a ten gallon receptacle, copper coil, and small amount of mash.

Canter is being held at the county jail for inability to pay fine.—Lancaster Eagle.

To Mr. and Mrs. Christy Schwarz, of Columbus, formerly of Williamsport, Thursday, July 16, 1925, a son.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.

Hazel I. Bowman has filed a petition in common pleas court against Mary E. Pierce and others for foreclosure of mortgage and personal judgment in the sum of $8,500 with interest from January 21, 1924. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

Suits For Divorce.

Georgia A. Guenther, an infant, by Ollie Palm, her next friend, has filed a suit for divorce from Frederick C. Guenther. The parties were married December 27, 1922. They have one child aged 16 months. She charges her husband with failure to provide. She asks for a divorce and that the custody of the child be awarded to Ollie Palm, the child's grandmother. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

Charles Webb Hunsicker has filed a petition for divorce from Dorothy I. Hunsicker in the court of common pleas. The parties were married April 9, 1921, and have one child, a daughter, Virginia Ann, now three years old. The plaintiff charges his wife with gross neglect in that for more than a year she has been dissatisfied with her home at Woodlyn and continually insisted upon moving to Mt. Sterling where her parents live or to city of Columbus, and during this period of time would be away for weeks at a time. Since March 1, 1925, she has not remained in his home one single night. The plaintiff is the owner of 482 acres in Monroe and Perry townships in which the defendant has an inchoate right of dower. He asks to be divorced from defendant, that he be awarded custody care and education of their child and that he be decreed all of his real estate free from any dower interest of the defendant. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

THE SICK.

Chapman Sheets, who was injured on June 29, while superintending a road near the Hitler cemetery, and who at the time sustained several broken ribs, severe body bruises and a shock, is improving gradually.

ROCKY RIVER MYSTERY AT BUCKEYE LAKE

Columbus, O., July 23 (UP).—A suspect in the Rocky river murder mystery was arrested at Buckeye Lake near here, early today and held at the city prison for removal to Cleveland.

Detectives who made the arrest said they acted on a tip from a woman in Cleveland where the death of an unidentified youth with a bullet in his head has puzzled authorities for nearly a week, all efforts to identify him having failed.

The suspect is William Geary, 28, former Ohio penitentiary convict. Since leaving prison he has been "doing" small time vaudeville as a singer, having trained for this work while a member of the penitentiary quartet.

Detectives declined to say what new clues they have turned up in the Rocky river case.

Governor Donahey has interested himself in the mystery to the extent of sending a penitentiary bertillon expert to Cleveland to assist in the probe.

BANCROFT A BANKRUPT IS PROSPEROUS

Columbus, July 22 (UP).—Charles H. Bancroft, who left Columbus several years ago after going into bankruptcy for approximately $100,000 returned Wednesday and settled in full with all his creditors.

Bancroft told bankers that since leaving Columbus he had made a million dollars in Florida real estate and wanted to settle with every man he owed.

One man who held a $1500 note of Bancroft's had sold it for $150. Bancroft bought it for $150 and then paid its original holder the difference, $1350.

HIS DESIGNS LOFTY

Cass Gilbert, noted architect, who designed the Woolworth building, is designing an 88-story skyscraper for New York which would dwarf the Woolworth, being 33 stories higher.

Mrs. George Gephart, accompanied by her son, Thomas Gephart, of Williamsport, spent the day in Columbus.

HEADGEAR OF GOVERNOR WAS PRIZE WINNER

Mrs. Maude Murray Miller Was Crowned Queen of Democracy at Picnic.

Governor Vic Donahey "high-tailed" everyone at the Democratic picnic held at Olentangy pary Wednesday. He won first prize in the high-hat division of the cranial adornment contest.

Claude Meeker had the most dilapidated hat, a battle scarred plug, and Timothy S. Hogan was conceded full rights to claim his hat as being the toughest looking shallah foil east of Dublin.

Mrs. Leo Moore on $10 for having the best preserved hat. It was only 37 years old.

It was a great day for Democrats. More than 2000 of them were present to see Mrs. Maude Murray Miller crowned Mrs. Democracy. Mr. Meeker did the coronation act, which was both beautiful and impressive. Miss Betty Lou Hartzog was flower girl and Miss Barbara Jane Deck carried the crown for the coronation.

The Fifteenth Ward had the biggest turnout, registering a total of 90. The gold prize of $10 was won by the Fourth Ward for selling the greatest number of tickets. Mrs. T. A. Burnett conducted this work.

David Sutphen, 83, 248 W. Sixth avenue, was the oldest Franklin county Democrat present.

Other prize winners were Miss Gertrude Houck, 4164 Glenmore avenue, wrist watch; Mrs. Paul Savafie, 1354 W. Fifth avenue, electric fan; Edward Hirt, 797 W. Champion avenue, electric iron; Miss Catherine Bradford, 551 S. Ohio avenue, electric lamp.

Judge Dean Throckmorton awarded the prizes, assisted by L. M. Williams and Mrs. Glendora Beatty.

AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATE SPOOK HOUSE

Columbus, O., July 22 (UP).—A blood-spatter "spook house," three miles southeast of here engaged the attention of county authorities today.

A real estate agent looking over the premises which have not been occupied for 15 years and around which many a tale of ghosts have been woven, discovered the interior of the house spotted with fresh blood.

Sheriff's deputies were called to the scene and reported that the doors of the old house had a spooky habit of slamming and banging wind or no wind. The neighbors said the owner of the house had been murdered 15 years ago. His body was believed to have been thrown in a well.

So the deputies let grappling hooks down into the well and pulled up the body of a dog. But that does not explain the blood stains and the puddles of fresh blood on the floors.

The investigation will continue, the deputies said.

DIXON WAS KNOWN HERE.

Paul Dixon, whose car it is alleged struck the machine of Mrs. Luther Lewis, of McGuffey, and which caused the death of her son, Paul, aged 18 months, on the streets of Columbus, last week, has been indicted on the charge of manslaughter. He is the same man who was recently placed under arrest by Motorcycle Officer McCrady, on North Court street, for exceeding the speed limit.

Mrs. C. A. Burget and son, Gail, of Columbus, are guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Brown, of West Main street.

CORRESPONDENCE

DARBYVILLE.

Miss Ona Beatty has returned home from a visit in Cleveland. She also spent a few days with friends in Oxford before going to Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McKinley visited with her sister, Mrs. C. W. Davis and other relatives in Columbus Sunday.

Nelson Florence and Morris Stainer went with the National guards Sunday for a two weeks' stay at Camp Perry.

Mrs. J. R. Hott spent Saturday in Columbus.

SALT CREEK VALLEY

A good safety hint says. One of the safest things to fall back on is good hard cash.

Winona Lanman, of Tarlton, spent last week visiting at Buckeye Lake.

The progress of our electric line down the valley will be somewhat delayed owing to the widening of the public highway which will cause the resetting of the electric poles for three miles but nevertheless we will get there just the same, just wait.

Sam Cox has returned home after spending several months with friends and relatives in and around Bluffton, Indiana.

The Lutheran social will be given at the church Wednesday evening, July 29, at Tarlton. Regular supper, ice cream and cake. The K. of P. band of Adelphi will furnish the music thruout the evening. Professor S. H. Myers of Detroit, will lead a community sing for the public. There will be music for each and every one distributed to the public. This will be an open air affair. Come and join in all. Miss Jeannette Wenrich, also of Detroit, will preside at the piano. Miss Wenrich has been playing for the radio WJX, Detroit. This will well be worth your time. Come out, the public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Murphy, of Columbus, were the Sunday guests of Noah Waliser and family. Mrs. Murphy will remain for the week.

Mrs. Louise Rittenour and two sons, Junior and Billy, of Birmingham, Alabama, are guests of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Irwin, of Tarlton.

Walter Schweitzer, of Chillicothe, is the guest of Arlow Walizer this week. Xunita Judy and Isabel McHorter of Columbus are the guests of Mildred Judy this week.

The dedication services of the Lutheran church last Sunday was largely attended. Rev. Paul W. Koller D. D. delivered the sermon in the morning. Rev. C. A. Robertson of Lancaster in the afternoon and Rev. J. Sittler in the evening with appropriate services all thru.

The holy communion services will be held at the Lutheran church Sunday morning at 10 a. m. You are cordially invited to attend these services.

Mrs. Mary Miesse and daughter of Columbus are visitors this week with Walter Miesse and family.

LOOKING AHEAD

Cleveland, July 21.—(UP.)—Airplanes during the next generation will attain a speed of half a thousand miles an hour.

With their tremendous speed which will enable people to go to and from work rapidly they will transform cities into places to work and not to live.

This was predicted today by Major Reed Chambers, of Detroit, here to inspect the Cleveland air port and other flying fields. Chambers was a flyer in the world war for 22 months, seeing service on every front.

"Great stretches of country which are now farms will be turned into residential districts," he predicted.

"When you think of the tremendous speed of the airplane and the greater possible speed, this ceases to be a dream."

Producing Liquid Air

Liquid air is a transparent, limpid, intensely cold liquid, slightly bluish color, and of about the same density as water. It is prepared by subjecting air to great pressure and then cooling it by its own expansion to a temperature below the boiling point of its constituents (nitrogen, 194 degrees centigrade; oxygen, 183 degrees centigrade). Its chief use is as a refrigerant.

SHOOTING POPULAR MEANS OF SLAYING IN STATE OF OHIO

Vital Statistics Report Also Shows Falls Caused More Fatalities in 1924 Than Did Automobiles—741 Kill Selves.

Firearms are the most popular means of killing oneself or others in Ohio, a final report filed yesterday by I. C. Plummer, chief of the division of vital statistics of the state health department shows. It covers 1922, 1923 and 1924.

Falls caused more deaths than automobile accidents in 1924, while aeroplanes are so safe that a third more persons were killed by animals, either wild or domestic, than met death through joy-riding in the sky. Although the war has been ended for nearly seven years, 44 persons died in Ohio last year of war wounds.

Population of the state July 1, 1924, was 6,219,269. Plummer's report estimates an increase of 102,204 during the year.

To return to the firearms—there were 741 suicides in the state in 1924, and 274 of them were by shooting. The same method proved most effective in ridding the neighborhood of persons one dislikes, too, for, of the 430 homicides, 276 met death at the muzzle of a gun. Homicides by cutting or stabbing totaled only 61, while by all other means, including several poisonings, they amounted to 80.

A total of 173 persons committed suicide by drowning during the year, and 173 by hanging themselves. Twenty-two used the poison route to end their lives, and 119 took "corrosive substances." Only 17 did it by jumping off a roof, while five resorted to "crushing" of some sort to end their lives.

The chapter of accidents upsets several prevalent ideas about comparative dangers of various means of travel and occupation. Airplane and balloon accidents killed only 16 persons during 1924, while animals killed 27. These did not include the five killed by snakes and mad dogs or other poisonous animals, but counted only those actually slain by animals, probably mostly farm animals.

Then there were automobiles that killed 1,036 others. This was a decrease, by the way, of nearly 100 from the auto fatalities of the previous year. Street car accidents killed 155 and railroad accidents, 166, including persons struck by trains.

Lightning proved to be not very dangerous, and only 11 were killed by it. On the other hand accidental shocks from live wires or other transmitters of controlled electricity killed 77. Excessive heat was more often fatal than lightning, causing 47 deaths during the year, while only four died of excessive cold. There was a total of 5,084 accidental deaths in the state during the year.

During the year there were 69,912 deaths in the state, and 132,058 births. This is the greatest number of births ever recorded in one year in the state. The death rate for the state was 11.23 per 1,000 population, as compared to 12.27 for the preceding year.

Gallia county had the highest death rate, 18.2 per 1,000, and Summit county, in spite of the city of Akron in its midst, had the lowest, 7.8 per 1,000 population.

Columbus had a death rate of 13.3, with a total of 3,533 deaths. The lowest death rate is credited to Kenmore, with a percentage of 4.4 but here again enters the equation of the fluctuating population of Akron and its suburbs. Akron had a death rate of only 7.7, the lowest of any big city. Population has been decreasing since the census, it was pointed out, while the rate was figured on the old population.

The event also marked the 83d birthday anniversary of Mr. Henry Wrightsel.

DEMOCRATS' FINANCES AND HOPES PLENTIFUL

Party in Best Condition To Open Fight Than For Many Years, Dye Says.

Columbus, July 22.—Contributions to the Democratic party are beginning to come in and the party is in better condition to open the fight than it has been for many years, State Chairman T. E. Dye said yesterday, after the meeting of the state financial committee at the Deshler.

He declined to divulge the amounts received since the close of last campaign, but said the party has a surplus of $2,137.73. Reports that there was a $9,000 surplus in the treasury were incorrect, Dye asserted.

Story of the Built-Well Home

Chapter III

No, the rain does not damage Celetex Insulating Lumber. It is not effected by moisture and weather conditions. In many homes two-thirds of the heat in winter is wasted. Celetex stops heat waste without adding to the cost of building.

No home can be comfortable in all weather and is not modern unless properly insulated.

Celetex Insulating Lumber is used in thousands of refrigerator cars to keep heat in during winter and out during summer. It will do the same for the Built-Well Home.

Be sure and visit Monclair Addition now and see this home being built and covered with its warm coat before the weather-boarding and plaster goes on.

Mannish Tailleur and Chic Ensemble

Two Most Popular Fashions of Season Combined in Latest Mode.

The mode has acquired a complex—and a Freudian complex to boot, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. Having freed itself from the tyranny of the tubular outline, it has stepped blithely into the maelstrom of the masculine influence in dress versus the feminine, and milady is still unable to rest easy in the lap of fashion. Contrast the mannish tailleur and the essential feminine ensemble, the simple unadorned suits with the frilly and intricate dresses of the new season, the mold and flare with the straight line, and you will begin to appreciate the numerous conflicting issues which have been raised by the Paris couture. Out of the varied maze of themes it is clearly evident that the mode must either follow the stricter lines of the mannish tailleur, the gentler influence of the feminine ensemble, or else arrive at some happy compromise.

The ensemble is the leading exponent of the feminine influence in spring dress, and it is equally a leader in the revolt from the hackneyed tubular silhouette. The theme, of course, may be and frequently is extended to hats, hosiery, shoes and the various other accessories of dress, but in its essential form it consists of a dress and coat which are brought into a single identity by means of fabric trimming or fabric design. The most usual linking liaison is a printed material which is used for the dress and the lining of the coat, and which appears not infrequently upon sleeves, collar and hemline as well. Granted that there is no longer anything novel in the theme—it was originally introduced in the winter of 1923-24—its principal virtue lies in the fact that its novel effects cannot be easily imitated. On that basis numerous authorities insist that the ensemble as constituted today has acquired a definite permanent place in the mode, but we are among the decided dissenters from that proposition.

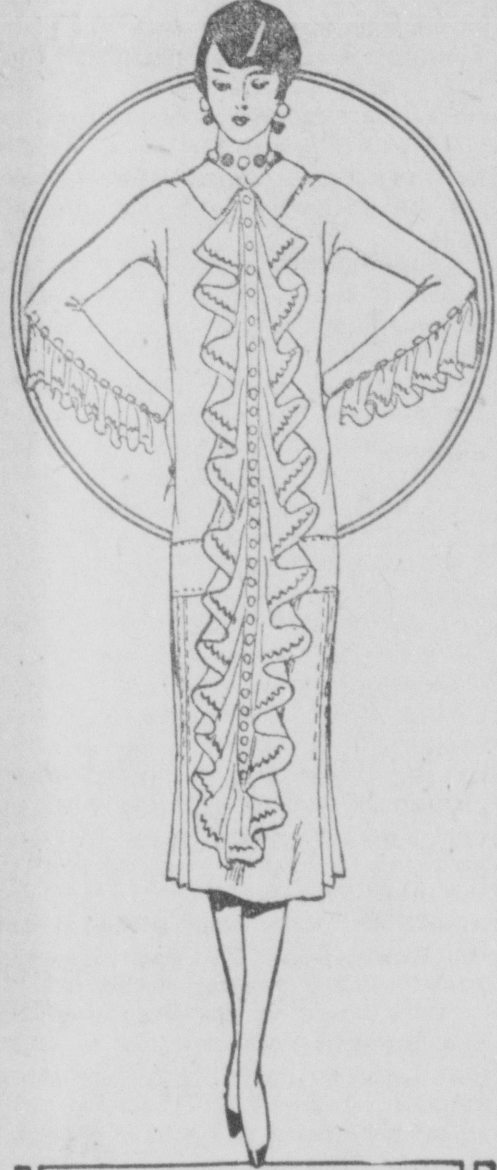

Long Coat and Flared Dress.
Ensemble dresses are normally of silk, principally georgette crepe, satin, crepe-satin, chiffon and taffeta, while the coats are usually developed in wool and silk. Except for Chanel, the Paris designers have chosen the three-quarter, seven-eighths or full-length coat to accompany these costumes, and Chanel has chosen the short coat only to be worn with her well-known jumper effects. Redingotes and an occasional suggestion of the directoire are noteworthy in the new ensemble coats. The most frequent combination is the three-quarter kasha coat lined with printed silk and the silk frock with a hemline flare.

The only obstacle which prevents the spring ensemble from achieving

harmonizes with the abbreviated hemline, but because it stands out in sharp contrast to the long coats of the ensemble.

Let it not be thought, however, that the new tailleur always adheres to the conservative lines of former years. It is true that in fabric and color it typically conforms to the substantial, non-radical standards of the past, but it has been spurred by the example of the ensemble to acquire many novel details. One of these is the use of opposing materials for the jacket and skirt; another the featuring of elaborate high-colored linings for the jacket, and the repetition of this same color as a trimming for the outside of both coat and skirt.

The Mode Compromised.
The issue between tailleur and ensemble is still clouded. Each has its salient points. The ensemble shows a new silhouette—and a changed outline has been one of the urgent needs of the mode for several seasons. The tailored suit is an entirely different conception and it expresses simplicity unadorned. The first includes jabots, high collars, and all the other frilly furbelows; the second is plain, in comparatively somber shades, and is developed in the typical, severe O'Rosen manner.

The complete wardrobe, of course, will include both tailleur and ensemble, but there are frugal ladies with limited budgets who are compelled to align themselves with only one of the spring leaders. For them, these precepts. Both themes are en regle—the ensemble is far the safer choice, but the tailleur has a more sporting appeal. Its interlude may be brief and it will not reach the numerical strength of the ensemble this spring, but its proponents will be found in the most fashionable places.

Yet in the last analysis the gentle opportunist will take advantage of a liberal mode and choose according to her type. It isn't always that the opportunity is presented of selecting freely and with a definite assurance of correctness, and the chic demoielle is certain to improve a situation which is unusual if not unique in the annals of fashion. Only one real danger confronts her, and this she must studiously avoid lest she join the malaprops of the mode. When a tailor-made is selected it must be essentially tailor-made—mannish, severe, and with none of the haunting femininity of the ensemble. And, conversely, the ensemble must avoid the straight rigidity of the tailleur and embody instead the flare and all the airy fragility of the afternoon dress. A tailleur that is half ensemble is not a tailleur at all, and an ensemble that is severely tailored bears too close a resemblance to last year's styles to be smart. Hybrid compromises are decidedly non grata in the new spring fashions, and every costume must be expressed distinctly according to the tenets of its type.

Kasha Daytime Dresses.
Kasha is the basis of the Lanvin daytime dresses that are seen on the streets of Paris and at the exclusive rendezvous. She uses it in every pastel shade as well as in the striking vivid green hue that bears her name. Used alone it is plaited, embroidered, quilted and painted. Combined with other materials it shows the adaptability of kasha, which is charming with a silk-like surah or printed marocain and equally attractive with lace or chiffon gowns. Though it is principally utilized for the sports suit and morning frock, Lanvin has extended the use of kasha to the afternoon dress as well.

The polka dot has taken the place of the large embroidered or appliqued circles that were so popular last season. It is always attractive whether it appears printed on silks and crepe de chine, embroidered in metal threads on taffeta or in fine silk threads on chiffon or organdie. Lanvin uses dots of graduated sizes in haphazard pyramids along the hem of a full-skirted picture dress. She scatters them along the outer curve of an elaborate sleeve and sprinkles them over a corsage in a long narrow point from neck to waist.

It would take the dynamite kick of a mad Georgia mule to make some men to rise in the world; and even if that, they'll growl because they wouldn't have time to pick a soft place to fall; and if they were able to catch hold of a rainbow up yonder, it would break all to pieces with their dead weight, and they'd come tumbling down!—Atlanta Constitution.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

a landslide this season is the tailored suit, which is bravely returning after a dismally cold reception last year. The tailleur boasts a long line of inspiring sponsors this season both in the ranks of the haute monde and in the ranks of the equally haute couture—it is a definite response to the trend toward unadorned simplicity and its vogue for spring already is distinctly assured in smart circles.

The silhouette of the tailormade is comparatively undistinguished—it is short, straight, and subject to none of the allurements of the frilly ensemble. In its typical form the tailleur consists of a jacket and skirt of the same material and either a silk waist or a pique waistcoat. The jackets are short or long, but the skirt does not share that indecision—it is always short, and is sometimes curtailed beyond the point of artistry. Our own preference is for the short jacket as well—not only because it

Finds Pilgrim's Progress
in Four of Psalms

Seattle.—An Old Testament "Pilgrim's Progress" has been found in four of the psalms by Dr. Herbert H. Gowen, professor of oriental languages and literature at the University of Washington.

Doctor Gowen's translation differs from the standard one. He says he has preserved as nearly as possible the original meter of the Old Testament songs and has diligently connected the four chants into a continuous story of the pilgrims' return to the promised land.

"The conception behind the four psalms, which begin with the 120th, was the return of the Jewish exiles from Babylonian captivity," Doctor Gowen said. "The joy of the returning captives as they noticed the hills of their native land and the towers of Jerusalem is reflected in the songs."

TAMED BY RANGERSkunk, Too, Friendly but Not Overwelcomed.Glacier Park, Mont.—United States Forest Ranger Lewis Hanson of the Two Medicine valley in Glacier National park fed flapjacks all winter to a mink, a weasel, a skunk and two gray squirrels. The mink, weasel and the squirrels got so tame they ate out of his hand, but he left the skunk to wait on itself "cafeteria fashion." Veteran troopers of the Rocky Mountains say this is the first time they ever heard of a mink or a weasel getting tame enough to eat out of a man's hand.The incident came to official notice when Ranger Hanson kept reporting a shortage in flour rations. The chief ranger, when he discovered what Ranger Hanson was doing with the flour, was first inclined to reprimand the subordinate, but on looking over the rules and regulations, he changed his mind and allowed the extra supply.
In Uncle Sam's manual, forest rangers are instructed to be kind to animals.Ranger Hanson's amiability has extended to more species than any other has yet made pets of in the wilds of the Rockies."Of course, in the tourist season, it's different, but during the lonely months of the long winter a fellow has a friendly feeling for anything with life in it," Ranger Hanson volunteered. "These animals evidently felt the same way about it, for they kept hanging around my cabin door all winter, and I sure couldn't regard 'em as anything but companions of the wilds.""But that darned skunk! I just couldn't bring myself to fondle him, although the poor devil almost wagged his tail as friendly as a dog when he approached me begging for the flap-jacks which he had seen me feed to the other animals. I had to laugh at myself at times, when I was almost convinced that he was sincerely friendly in the wagging of that tail.""Once I was on the verge of giving him the hand offering just to show that I had no partiality for the other animals. I guess if I had had two suits of clothes I might have done it."

DISTRICTS IN
STATE OF OHIOFour Million Dollars Paid
Yearly to Aid in Education in 24 Poor Counties.Twenty-four "poor" counties in Ohio are educating their children with money supplied by the other 64 counties with little or no prospect of ever reaching a self-sustaining basis, it became known Wednesday. A walkout of the entire staff of 32 teachers of the Pomeroy schools occurred this week as a direct result of this situation.Scarcity of jobs in the teaching profession this year probably will prevent the walkouts from becoming general, but the counties under state aid appropriations will have to take what is left" after other districts finish hiring, officials of state department of education said.Low appraisal rates of property, including valuable coal lands in some of the districts, is responsible for the limited income and causes the property loss that makes these counties
"charity patients" in the Ohio educational system. There is no relief in sight, and they probably will continue receiving aid from the state treasury
it was said.The Pomeroy teachers were ousted by their board of education when they refused to sign contracts to teach nine months for eight months pay.
Some of them have been teachers in Pomeroy for 25 years. Similar situations exist in the other counties and cities which are unable to finance their own educational systems.Little danger of a shortage in teachers is apparent now, because of the general surplus of teachers all over the state. Department of education officials point out that boards of education this year have a greater range of selection than usual because of the unusual number of applicants for jobs.State laws require at least eight months of school in all districts in Ohio, but most of the local rules particularly in cities and village, require nine months' school. Counties receive state aid for eight months only, however, and many of them are trying to "get by" on this and so run their schools nine months in the year by compelling teachers to teach one month without pay.The state department of education will not recommend state aid for more than eight-month school terms. Director Vernon M. Riegel said. "This is the legal minimum, and the state should not be required to help for longer terms than that, he said."Low appraisal value of property in the counties in question is responsible for their poverty-stricken condition, it was admitted. Frequently the property actually is of little value, being hill lands not suitable for intensive farming and not highly productive under present conditions.In many of the counties which receive state aid, however, coal lands worth as high as $1,000 an acre, are carried on the tax duplicates as farm lands, at values ranging as low as $15 an acre.Many of these holdings are actually being worked as mines, producing coal. There are also some oil lands included in the same class. There is no present means of changing this situation, Director Riegel said.State aid in the 24 counties amounts to about $4,000,000 a year, which helps in the education of approximately 115,000 children. Counties, on the average, pay about half the cost, which amounts to about $35 a year for each child. The state pays the rest. Director Riegel said this figure is not unreasonable.There is no means of placing a tax on products taken from the land in the counties in question, he said. This not only is not permitted by Ohio laws, but would only "come from the people" in the end, by increasing the price of coal to the extent of the amount of the tax. Money now used for this purpose comes in indirect taxation from public utilities.Suggestions that coal being exported from the state be taxed to pay the additional revenue needed by the coal producing counties have been offered,
he said, but would only result in further difficulties of Ohio coal in competing in out-of-the-state markets, and require a heavy force to collect the taxes and check up on shipments.Tax levies are up to the limit in the impoverished counties and the only possibility of their raising more revenues from taxation lies in the possible higher appraisal of property within their boundaries.A law requiring reappraisal of property every six years probably willrequire appraisals in many of these districts within two or three years, it was pointed out. This probably will not result in sufficient increase to relieve the situation, however.Teachers in the "poor" counties apparently, will have to continue teaching nine months a year on eight months' pay indefinitely. Teaching standards have not been lowered greatly in any of the counties affected, as yet, Director Riegel said in spite of the lowered pay.Centralizing of schools and consoli-dations may offer some relief. There are now, in Ohio 425 centralized schools, according to a survey recently completed by George M. Morris rural school supervisor in the department. There were only 50 such schools 10 years ago. There are still 1987 teachers in as many one-room schools. They teach an average of 16 pupils. The number of these teachers could be reduced by half the survey shows, by consolidating and centralizing schools.

SUGAR

By ALBERT W. TOLMAN

IT WAS raining that tropic noon on the northern horizon up toward Mindoro, as if misty fingers were sponging the color from the fringe of the copper sky. The five castaways in the typhoon-battered dinghy looked at the bronze splotch thirstily, picturing heaven beyond those low clouds hovering vaporously and benignantly over the unseen land where men had food to eat and water to drink and trees to shade them from the sun.

Ah Sing, the Malay steward, was busy with turned back in the bow; the four whites gave him no heed. Soon he faced them, a small sack in his hand, his black eyes glittering snakily under his low yellow forehead.

"It is better that one should die than five. Meat and drink are ours, if we will. In my country we gamble with lumps of sugar, that man winning or losing on whose lump a fly shall first alight. It is a fair game, even though used by dogs like myself, unworthy to lick up the crumbs from white men's tables."

His thin lips sneered venomously. His eyes shot glances of baleful fire. From the sack he shook into his flat palm five sugar cubes, the last of their dwindled rations.

"Let us play this game, each staking his life on the lump he chooses. Allah will send a fly, and the man on whose piece it first sets foot shall yield his body as food for the rest."

The whites shrank from him in disgust and horror, but the tempting Malay voice purred on:

"It is free and fair; no man shares, unless he risks; no man risks unless he wishes to share. His risk is one to four; his chances of sharing are four to one."

Dead silence brooded over the boat. The brains of the men were boiling in their skulls, their throats were parched, their blood was thick. For days no food or drink had passed their lips. They stared dully out across the pale blue sea. Behind the dinghy trailed a patient black fin, waiting, waiting.

Ah Sing's eyes gleamed furtively, as he watched them pondering. With a swift gesture he plucked a cube from his open palm.

"I will take the first."
He extended his lean hand to the others, his voice vibrant and masterful.

"Choose."
Cracked lips growling assent, they chose mechanically with averted faces. Ah Sing's steady fingers placed his lump on the thwart, and each white followed with him with tremulous hand, knowing that he might be sealing his own death warrant. They waited, intently, hungrily, jealously, fearfully, fiercely, feeling their lives shrink to the compass of the brittle cubes they watched.

Out of nowhere appeared a fly, and alighted on the gunwale. Its wings were burnished, its body bottle green. Its eyes like points of fire. To one of the five it was the angel of death, sent by Allah or the devil.

Abruptly it sprang into the air, and hung above the thwart with fanning wings. No one breathed. For a moment it hovered over the steward's lump, and his yellow face blanched ashen. Then it darted down upon the captain's.

The others turned sickly; but the Malay, uttering a cry of savage joy, drew his needle-pointed knife and with teeth bared crouched for the spring on his chief. Suddenly the mate regained his voice.

"Seize that man!" croaked he; and a sailor wrapped his gaunt arms about Ah Sing, and held him, struggling and furious.

The mate picked up the steward's lump; on the thwart beneath lay a dark moist spot. He smelled the cube, then turned in wrath on the writhing Malay.

"This lump has been soaked in kerosene. No fly would alight on it, even if he were starving."

With cries of rage the others threw themselves on the traitor. But he flung them off, menacing with his keen blade, and went headlong overboard. The black fin astern slid up alongside and disappeared in a flurry of foam, leaving a slowly spreading stain of blood.

The four, breathing hard, questioned one another with their eyes. The mate answered for all:

"No; we'll die like white men."
He flung the lumps into the sea. The hours dragged by, silent, hot and leaden, each bringing nearer insensibility and death.

It was raining again at sunset up toward Mindoro, but the men in the dinghy did not heed it. A short, fat steamer, throwing black smoke, was wallowing toward them; and that was heaven enough.

Greater Than Solomon

According to Phoenician tradition, Solomon was not the wisest man who ever lived. The Phoenician claim is that Abdomon of Tyre was not only able to solve all the riddles proposed by Solomon but gave the latter problems which the king of Israel was unable to cope with. Solomon, so the story goes, had worsted Hiram, king of Tyre, in a battle forlorn. To vindicate the honor of his country, Abdomon entered the lists and won back all the money Hiram had lost, and a great deal more.

WILL ROGERS DISCUSSES WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Says If Newspapers Refused To Tell of Dayton Trial Commoner Would Be Back in Florida so Quick You Would Think He Had Been Nominated For Something.

Andrew Jackson brought undying fame to the glorious state of Tennessee. He did it by personal bravery and unmatched native intelligence. He reached the White House, the highest prize in the gift of the American people, but it remained for a product of the corn tassels of Nebraska and the under-water realtor from Florida to bring a dignified commonwealth onto the comic pages of every periodical in the world.

"Hickory" Jackson's work of a lifetime has all been undone by the self-advertisement of William Jennings Bryan. It is generally conceded that it was done to advertise Dayton, but why make a monkey out of Tennessee? Tennessee claims they didn't descend from a monkey, but their actions in this case seem to prove otherwise. If a man is a gentleman he don't have to announce it; all he has to do is to act like one and let the world decide. No man should have to prove in court what he is, or what he came from. As far as Scopes teaching children evolution, nobody is going to change the belief of Tennessee children as to their ancestry. It is from the action of their parents that they will form their opinions.

Bryan says he is appearing there for no pay, but you just let every newspaper in the United States decide not to say a word about this trial and Bryan will be back in Florida so quick you will think he has been nominated for something.

Bryan should appear for nothing. He ought to pay Scopes' fine. It has been almost like a Democratic convention year for Bryan. It's the most publicity any politician ever got in an off year. Why, it's just like Peggy Joyce finding a new millionaire husband.

If Darwin hadn't died before Bryan was old enough to maneuver, I would have bet that Bryan framed up the theory with Darwin, but as he didn't he should at least thank him and give him the credit and when he dies leave all his money to some animal institute.

Bryan says if he fails in this case that Christianity is thru. Why, even when our Savior came down to earth He didn't make it that assertive. There is nowhere in the Bible any prediction of what would have happened if he had failed.

You can't stop a man thinking; neither do I think Bryan could start a serious man thinking. These fellows who honestly believe that their great great-grandfathers were as proficient with their toes as with their fingers, they have that right just as much as Bryan has the right to seriously believe he is a second Messiah and that Nebraska was the modern manger.

Now, all joking aside, can you seriously imagine the future of Christianity (which means the whole world) depending upon what Bryan proves at this trial? Darwin started this thing years ago, and Christianity hadn't done much tottering up to the time Bryan began to have fears for it.

Pride of Ancestry.

There is a terrible lot of us who don't think that we came from a monkey, but if there are some people who think that they do, why, it's not our business to rob them of what little pleasure they may get out of imagining it. Most people are proud of their ancestry and it is a touchy thing for even a Bryan to cast reflections on any man's forefathers, even if he did arrive here on all fours. What good will it do at this late date to argue over how or who we come from?

Why don't Bryan and a lot of other people let the world alone? What has been the matter with it up to now? I can show you millions of people that think it is great, and are not worrying even if we arrived here from a tadpole. If the Lord had wanted us to know exactly how, and where, and when we came, He would have let us know in the first place. He didn't leave any room for doubt when He told you how you should act when you got here. His example and the Commandments are plain enough, so just start from there; never mind going back any farther. If he had wanted Bryan to have all the details He would have told him. The Lord put all these millions of people over the earth. They don't all agree on how they got here, and ninety per cent don't care. But He was pretty wise when He did see to it that they all do agree on one thing (whether Christian, Heathen or Mohammedan), and that is that the better lives you live the better you will finish.

Fond of the Commoner.

Now, personally, I like Bill, in fact, I am very fond of him. He is a nice congenial old gentleman, and I can recall many happy chats with him. But when he says that he will make this his life's issue and take it up thru all the various courts, and finally endeavor to get it into the constitution of the United States and make a political and presidential issue of it, he is wrong. More wrong than he has ever been before. These other things he was wrong on didn't do much harm, but now he is going to try and drag something that pertains to the Bible into a political campaign. He can't ever do that. He might make Tennessee the side-show of America, but he can't make a street-carnival of the whole United States.

As for changing the constitution—that has been done every day. They have juggled it around until it looks like a moving picture of a popular book (it's so different from the original). But when those old Boys who blue-printed the first constitution decided that a man can believe what he likes in regard to religion, that's one line that is going to stay put. If Bryan keeps on agitating after this trial, regardless of the consequences he will be doubly wrong.

You know, he has a very big following; some real people; honest-to-goodness folks, that really believe in him, and have confidence in him. Any of these other issues of his the people could forget or laugh off, but when you get people riled up on a religious question, it is serious, and he would be directly responsible for some very serious consequences and lots of ill-feeling, and perhaps bloodshed over something that up to now has never been necessary.

Bryan wasn't put on earth as a leader; his records show that. He was put on earth as an example. He says this is the beginning of a great religious revival that will start in Dayton, finally reaching Florida. Bill is wrong again. No great religious revival will ever be started from an argument over where we came from. The religious revival of the future, when it is started, will be the people's fear over where we are going.

Bryan is not going to be able to scare the world into believing that the Lord is going to send anybody to Hell just because they don't know how, or from whom, they arrived here. I don't know how I got here, but I will just stay ignorant and take my chances at the end, rather than Bryan's chances if he willingly stirs up religious hatred among his fellowmen.—Will Rogers in Cincinnati Enquirer.

MASCOT KNOWS HIS STUFF.

Mascot, the trained pony, is a most educated animal and this is his fifth season. When this pony which is the headliner of the Spaun Family, show, was here last, it pleased the children who went wild over the tricks it performed. This year the show will also have vaudeville, trapeze, juggling and farce comedy. It is a show that pleases both young and old and will be here under canvas the week of July 27, at the popular prices of 10 and 20 cents.

Where Modesty Wins

A modest person seldom fails to gain the good will of those he converses with because nobody envies a man who does not appear to be pleased with himself.

Has Penetration

The largest X-ray machine ever built, capable of generating 200,000 voltage of rays, will penetrate through one-quarter inch of lead, one foot of aluminum and two feet of brick.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

THE COUNCIL AT JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:1-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—"We believe that
through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they."
—Acts 15:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Friend
of Little Children.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Great Gathering
at Jerusalem.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-
IC—The Council at Jerusalem.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-
IC—What Is Christian Liberty?

I. The Controversy in the Church at Antioch (vv. 1-5).

This difficulty was a most serious
one for it threatened the disruption of the church into a Jewish and a Gentile division. It was not a question of the admission of the Gentiles into the church. That had been settled some years before when Peter received Cor-nellius and his household. The question now was, on what ground could they be received? Should Gentile converts be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salvation? This issue was brought on by the coming of certain men from Jerusalem, who declared, "Except ye be circumcised
after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved (v. 1)." The question was so difficult that Paul and Barnabas were unable to put the men to silence.
These Jewish legalists had the letter of the Scripture on their side. They could point to the command in which
this was enjoined upon believers
(Gen. 17:14). Paul could not point to any Scripture where it had been abrogated. If Paul could plead that Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, his antagonists could answer, "Yes, but after justification the rite was divinely imposed." The brethren at Antioch decided to refer the matter to the mother church at Jerusalem. Accordingly, Paul and Barnabas and others were sent as a deputation to Jerusalem. At an informal reception by the church at Jerusalem they rehearsed the things which God had done for them.

II. The Deliberations of the Coun- cil (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter's Speech (vv. 6-11).
He argued that God had borne witness to His acceptance of the Gentiles
by giving the Holy Spirit to them as unto the Jews (Acts 10:34-47). Since,
therefore, God had not made a difference it would be folly for them to do so.

2. Paul and Barnabas Rehearsed Their Experience (v. 12).

They told how God had set his seal
of approval on their preaching of salvation by grace through faith, apart
from works, by the working of signs
and wonders through them.

3. The Argument of James (vv. 14-21).

He took the declaration of Peter and showed how it harmonized with the prophecy of Amos (Amos 9:11-15).
He showed that the reception of the Gentiles was not in conflict with God's plan, but in strict harmony therewith.
As set forth by James, God's plan is
as follows:

(1) To take out from among the Gentiles a people for His name (v.
14). This is what is now going on—the preaching of the gospel to the ends of the earth, and the calling out of the church.

(2) After the church is completed and removed, the Hebrew nation will be converted and restored to its own
land and privileges by the Lord Himself at His return (vv. 16-17).

(3) Following this will be the conversion of the world through the agency of converted Israel (v. 17, cf.
Rom. 11:15). He showed that there is no conflict when the Scriptures are rightly divided.

His judgment was that the Gentiles
should not be troubled with things that are Jewish, but should be warned against the perils of heathenism, such as meat offered to idols, fornication
and blood.

III. The Decision (vv. 22-29).

The Mother church came to unanimous agreement and accepted the resolution offered by James. The apostles and elders not only sent a letter
stating the decision of the conference,
but took the wise precaution to send influential men along with Paul and Barnabas to bear the same testimony
by word of mouth. The letter denied the authority of the Judaizing teachers (v. 24), and stated the method by which this decision had been reached (vv. 25-27). They put the Holy Spirit first.

IV. The Decision Delivered to the Church (vv. 30-35).

The church was called together to hear the report. Its reading brought rejoicing. They were now free to prosecute the great missionary work.

One Little Yea Among the Noes

During the Republican National convention of 1920 the leaders behind the scenes, fearing Senator Hiram Johnson might kick over the traces in the event of the nomination of a Presidential candidate displeasing to him, repeatedly made overtures to the Californian to take the second place on the ticket. Invariably Johnson declined the proposition. Toward the last he showed signs of temper.

At this critical period the stage managers invoked the offices of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., as an intermediary. They counted on the friendship which had existed between Johnson and young Roosevelt's father. Johnson was as briskly emphatic in stating his position to young Colonel Roosevelt as he had been in his language to earlier emissaries.

Nevertheless, right up to the eleventh hour the bosses trusted that Johnson might be induced to change his mind. Three of us, all newspaper correspondents, were in Johnson's room at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago on the night before the ticket was named, when Johnson's secretary came to say that Colonel Roosevelt was on the telephone, desiring to speak with him. Johnson took down the receiver, and we heard him say this, with pauses between words:

"No—no—no—yes—no—NO!"

When Senator Johnson had hung up the receiver and returned to his seat, one of those present said: "Senator, I'm curious to know what the question from Colonel Roosevelt was which caused you to reply in the affirmative when all your other answers were such positive noes."

Johnson's eyes twinkled. "That," he said, "was when the young man asked me if I could hear distinctly what he was saying."

Naval Observatory Works Them Out After Study of Sun and Moon.

Washington.—Prolonged study of the vagaries of the sun and the moon has enabled scientists of the United States naval observatory here to work out their eclipses for the next three years. Under the direction of Capt. W. S. Eichelberger they now are starting on the 1929 eclipses.

An annular eclipse of the sun—an eclipse where the rim of the sun shows outside of the eclipsed area—is forecast for July 20-21, this year, but will be invisible in the United States. A partial eclipse of the moon is due August 4, being more or less visible in the eastern states, and wholly visible on the Pacific coast.

There will be no eclipses of the moon next year, but there will be a total eclipse of the sun on January 14, 1926. It will be visible only from Africa to the Indian ocean, and the naval observatory will send a party from here to Sumatra to observe it.

Eclipse Visible July 9-10, 1926. An annular eclipse of the sun will be visible July 9-10, 1926, in the central Pacific ocean, and as a partial in northern Australia, the eastern edge of Asia, the United States and Mexico.

In 1927 there will be five eclipses—three of the sun and two of the moon. Seven eclipses in a year is the maximum, five of the sun and two of the moon, and the least number in a twelvemonth is two, both of the sun as will be the case in 1926.

An annular solar eclipse, visible in the southern Pacific, will occur January 3, 1927. A total of the moon, June 15, will be visible in the Atlantic ocean, North America, except the northern border, South America and the Pacific ocean. A total of the sun, June 29, will be visible in Europe, appearing as a near-total at Nome, Alaska. Another total of the moon in 1927 will take place December 8, visible generally in the Pacific ocean and in the northern part of North America. A partial eclipse of the sun will occur on December 24.

Mercury Dot on Sun.

Another heavenly phenomenon will be seen in 1927 in the transit of Mercury, which will appear as a dot on the sun. On November 10 the transit will take place, visible generally in the Pacific ocean, Australia and Asia, except in the northern and western portions. It will be visible at Honolulu, Manila and Samoa.

In 1928 three of the sun and two of the moon will be the order of eclipses. Captain Eichelberger considers that the total solar eclipse of May 19 that year will be a curious one, only part of the resulting shadow falling on the earth, appearing as a piece on the south of Africa, and as a partial in South Africa and the southern part of South America.

A total of the moon, June 3, will be visible in the western parts of North and South America, the Pacific ocean, Australia and the eastern border of Asia. Partial solar eclipses will occur June 17 and November 12, a total of the moon transpiring November 27, visible in the western hemisphere.

Horses Cross Rockies on Improvised "Shoes"

Missoula, Mont.—Weather conditions in some parts of northern Montana, particularly in the mountain sections, make it necessary at times to resort to rather unusual efforts to circumvent nature's handicaps. An instance is the reported plan of G. S. Hinkle, superintendent of construction work on the Lolo pass road project, on the border between Montana and Idaho where the highway crosses the Rocky mountains.

With snow still two and a half feet deep and the beginning of the season's construction operations planned, Mr. Hinkle decided to send thirty horses over the mountains in snowshoes.

Boards about a foot square are fastened to the feet of the horses. These, Mr. Hinkle says, will be sufficient to support the animals' weight, and it is said they quickly learn to handle the unaccustomed footgear.

Fred Morrell, district forester for the northwestern area of Montana, says his men occasionally find it necessary to resort to the same expedient in crossing the summit of the range.

Desert Auto Transit Grows in Mesopotamia

Bagdad.—Tourists are showing an increasing fondness for traveling over the desert in automobiles. Various cross-desert services have recorded a total of 1,000,000 miles of transit.

Something of a mild motor boom is beginning in Bagdad. New hotels are going up, one English and one French, and better tourist business is confidently expected. Nevertheless, general business is far from satisfactory. Poverty among the working classes is acute in both town and country.

Since the opening of the desert line between Syria and Mesopotamia two routes have been followed by automobiles. In leaving Damascus, one follows a straight line through the desert to Bagdad, while the second route points slightly to the north to pass through Palmyra, the well-known historic site, which attracts thousands of tourists, and then comes direct to Bagdad.

SAYS FARM INSURANCE RATES TOO HIGH

CONGRESSMAN BRAND ASKS GOVERNOR TO INVESTIGATE

Claims An Insurance Trust Is Being Formed and That Increases Smack of Monopoly—Interested Parties Say Rates Are Too Low and That Companies Have Been Operated At a Loss.

State investigation of insurance rates, following a reported "50 per cent increase" in rates on farm property, has been asked of Governor Donahey by Congressman Charles Brand, of Urbana.

The increase contained in the new rate schedules of the insurance companies is "unwarranted," Congressman Brand said, and smacks of a monopoly. He attacks the "rate making bureau" of insurance companies in the state, in his letter to the governor, and charges that an "insurance trust" is being formed.

Judge Harry Conn, state director of insurance, said he would investigate any complaint on insurance rates made by anyone. He said that no complaint had been made for some time. Insurance companies published a new rate schedule effective July 1, which contains some increases on farm property.

Congressman Brand has large farm holdings in the Seventh Congressional district, which he represents, and says insurance agents there confirm the reports that increases of 30 to 50 per cent are being made on all classes of farm property.

Insurance men say most companies writing farm insurance in Ohio had been operating at a loss on this business in the last five years and that the rates were too low. Ohio rates are the lowest in any state in the west, records of the Ohio inspection bureau, the clearing house for Ohio insurance, show.

Rates on farm buildings have been too low for some years, and the fire hazards meantime, have increased enormously, they say. The increased rate put into effect July 1, leaves Ohio with the cheapest fire insurance rates in the west, and as low as any state which publishes the schedules.

Heavy losses have caused many companies to withdraw entirely from the field of fire insurance for farms, and have caused some counties to be stricken off their lists entirely.

Records at the Ohio inspection bureau reveal that rates on barns and stables generally have gone up, while rates on houses in the country have been reduced, in the new schedule. No general statewide schedule was published prior to this year.

Last year, however, the charge generally made was $1 per $100 valuation for three years insurance on a frame farm house or barn. Rates on the same frame house this year are 85 cents for three years on a frame house, and $1.50 on a barn, for three years.

A reduction of ten cents per $100 valuation is made if the building is equipped with lightning rods, and approved roofs, brick construction and other means to prevent fires are covered by lower rate schedules. This is insurance for fire and lightning only.

Tornado insurance has gone up considerably this year, but that was influenced largely by the Lorain tornado and several other storms which did extensive wind damage last year, it was said. This is a variable rate, changing almost annually.

Insurance companies are obliged by law to fix uniform rate schedules, R. E. Julian, assistant manager of the bureau, said. The inspection bureau is maintained by insurance companies and offers quasi-state control over insurance rates. These rates must be raised or lowered at the direction of the state department of insurance.

There has been no indication that the rates in Ohio are too high, however, Judge Conn said. No complaints have been made. Department records also show heavy losses have been taken on farm property insurance by companies in the state during the past few years.

Ohio rates are lower than in any other state in the country except one or two eastern states which require insurance up to the full value of the property which is not required here. Eugene F. Gallagher, superintendent of the service department of the Ohio inspection bureau, said.

Director Conn said that he saw "no need for a state investigation" now, but that if one was asked he would very gladly look into the rates on farm property.

RIPE OLD AGE

George Ethington Civil War Veteran Died at Home of Daughter in Columbus.

George Ethington, 85, Civil war veteran died Wednesday night, July 22, at the home of his granddaughter Mrs. E. D. Penn, 23 Blenheim Road, Columbus. He resided with his daughter, Mrs. Earl B. Noggle, Ashville, and was visiting his granddaughter at the time of his death. He is survived also by five other daughters; Mrs. Lloyd Schisler and Miss Ruth Essington, of Columbus; Mrs. Lewis Bartley, of Circleville, and Mrs. Jacob Glick and Mrs. J. M. Johnson, also of Ashville and several other grandchildren.

The body was taken to the home of his daughter in Ashville where funeral services will be held Saturday.

SHE'S A REAL COWGIRL

Cowgirls do exist outside the pages of fiction and away from the motion picture camera. They ride and rope with the best of the "boys" in chaps and stetsons and, in fact, they exceed in skill and daring some of the male "busters" of the range. Many of these women riders will participate in the Chicago roundup and world's championship rodeo which will be held in Grant park stadium beginning August 15. Among the most famous of these is Ruth Roach of Fort Worth, Texas. Her daring as a rider has become proverbial as a result of dashing exhibitions of skill in the saddle at previous rodeos.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason and children, Miss Louise and John, who have been away on a vacation visiting relatives in Indiana, have returned home. Mr. Mason attended the National Retail Furniture Dealers' convention in Chicago, Illinois.

THE JAZZ KING TED LEWIS IN LONDON TOWN

Theodore Friedman Gets Wonderful Reception in World Metropolis.

Ted Lewis (Theodore Friedman) son of Mrs. B. Friedman, of this city, who recently went to London, England, for a six weeks' engagement at the Hippodrome, made a great hit. The amusement page of the New York Sun in a recent issue says:

"Ted Lewis and his band began this week an engagement as the feature attraction at the London Hippodrome, following the sensational success of his first week at Piccadilly Revels and the Kit-Kat club where he opened July 6.

"This is Lewis' first London appearance, and his original Jazz interpretations have taken London theatergoers and society, which flocks to the exclusive Kit-Kat club by storm. William Morris, who is managing his London engagement, cables that his success has been equalled by but few American stars in London."

FINED $100.

Charles Canter, of near Clearport, was fined $100 and costs this morning by Mayor Alsop when he pleaded guilty to the charge of possessing a still. Canter was arrested at 1:30 this morning at the nearby home of his father after Sheriff McNaghten's raiding crew had searched the son's home in his absence and discovered a ten gallon receptacle, copper coil, and small amount of mash.

Canter is being held at the county jail for inability to pay fine.—Lancaster Eagle.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.

Hazel I. Bowman has filed a petition in common pleas court against Mary E. Pierce and others for foreclosure of mortgage and personal judgment in the sum of $8,500 with interest from January 21, 1924. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

Suits For Divorce.

Georgia A. Guenther, an infant, by Ollie Palm, her next friend, has filed a suit for divorce from Frederick C. Guenther. The parties were married December 27, 1922. They have one child aged 16 months. She charges her husband with failure to provide. She asks for a divorce and that the custody of the child be awarded to Ollie Palm, the child's grandmother. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

Charles Webb Hunsicker has filed a petition for divorce from Dorothy I. Hunsicker in the court of common pleas. The parties were married April 9, 1921, and have one child, a daughter, Virginia Ann, now three years old. The plaintiff charges his wife with gross neglect in that for more than a year she has been dissatisfied with her home at Woodlyn and continually insisted upon moving to Mt. Sterling where her parents live or to city of Columbus, and during this period of time would be away for weeks at a time. Since March 1, 1925, she has not remained in his home one single night. The plaintiff is the owner of 482 acres in Monroe and Perry townships in which the defendant has an inchoate right of dower. He asks to be divorced from defendant, that he be awarded custody care and education of their child and that he be decreed all of his real estate free from any dower interest of the defendant. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

THE SICK.

Chapman Sheets, who was injured on June 29, while superintending a road near the Hitler cemetery, and who at the time sustained several broken ribs, severe body bruises and a shock, is improving gradually.

ROCKY RIVER MYSTERY AT BUCKEYE LAKE

Columbus, O., July 23 (UP).—A suspect in the Rocky river murder mystery was arrested at Buckeye Lake near here, early today and held at the city prison for removal to Cleveland.

Detectives who made the arrest said they acted on a tip from a woman in Cleveland where the death of an unidentified youth with a bullet in his head has puzzled authorities for nearly a week, all efforts to identify him having failed.

The suspect is William Geary, 28, former Ohio penitentiary convict. Since leaving prison he has been "doing" small time vaudeville as a singer, having trained for this work while a member of the penitentiary quartet.

Detectives declined to say what new clues they have turned up in the Rocky river case.

Governor Donahey has interested himself in the mystery to the extent of sending a penitentiary bertillon expert to Cleveland to assist in the probe.

BANCROFT A BANKRUPT IS PROSPEROUS

Columbus, July 22 (UP).—Charles H. Bancroft, who left Columbus several years ago after going into bankruptcy for approximately $100,000 returned Wednesday and settled in full with all his creditors.

Bancroft told bankers that since leaving Columbus he had made a million dollars in Florida real estate and wanted to settle with every man he owed.

One man who held a $1500 note of Bancroft's had sold it for $150. Bancroft bought it for $150 and then paid its original holder the difference, $1350.

HIS DESIGNS LOFTY

Cass Gilbert, noted architect, who designed the Woolworth building, is designing an 88-story skyscraper for New York which would dwarf the Woolworth, being 33 stories higher.

Mrs. George Gephart, accompanied by her son, Thomas Gephart, of Williamsport, spent the day in Columbus.

HEADGEAR OF GOVERNOR WAS PRIZE WINNER

Mrs. Maude Murray Miller Was Crowned Queen of Democracy at Picnic.

Governor Vic Donahey "high-hatted" everyone at the Democratic picnic held at Olentangy park Wednesday. He won first prize in the high-hat division of the cranial adornment contest.

Claude Meeker had the most dilapidated hat, a battle scarred plug, and Timothy S. Hogan was conceded full rights to claim his hat as being the toughest looking shallah foil east of Dublin.

Mrs. Leo Moore on $10 for having the best preserved hat. It was only 37 years old.

It was a great day for Democrats. More than 2000 of them were present to see Mrs. Maude Murray Miller crowned Mrs. Democracy. Mr. Meeker did the coronation act, which was both beautiful and impressive. Miss Betty Lou Hartzog was flower girl and Miss Barbara Jane Deck carried the crown for the coronation.

The Fifteenth Ward had the biggest turnout, registering a total of 90. The gold prize of $10 was won by the Fourth Ward for selling the greatest number of tickets. Mrs. T. A. Burnett conducted this work.

David Sutphen, 83, 248 W. Sixth avenue, was the oldest Franklin county Democrat present.

Other prize winners were Miss Gertrude Houck, 4164 Glenmore avenue, wrist watch; Mrs. Paul Savafie, 1354 W. Fifth avenue, electric fan; Edward Hirt, 797 W. Champion avenue, electric iron; Miss Catherine Bradfield 551 S. Ohio avenue, electric lamp.

Judge Dean Throckmorton awarded the prizes, assisted by L. M. Williams and Mrs. Glendora Beatty.

AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATE SPOOK HOUSE

Columbus, O., July 22 (UP).—A blood-spatter "spook house," three miles southeast of here engaged the attention of county authorities today.

A real estate agent looking over the premises which have not been occupied for 15 years and around which many a tale of ghosts have been woven, discovered the interior of the house spotted with fresh blood.

Sheriff's deputies were called to the scene and reported that the doors of the old house had a spooky habit of slamming and banging wind or no wind. The neighbors said the owner of the house had been murdered 15 years ago. His body was believed to have been thrown in a well.

So the deputies let grappling hooks down into the well and pulled up the body of a dog. But that does not explain the blood stains and the puddles of fresh blood on the floors.

The investigation will continue, the deputies said.

DIXON WAS KNOWN HERE.

Paul Dixon, whose car it is alleged struck the machine of Mrs. Luther Lewis, of McGuffey, and which caused the death of her son, Paul, aged 18 months, on the streets of Columbus, last week, has been indicted on the charge of manslaughter. He is the same man who was recently placed under arrest by Motorcycle Officer McCrady, on North Court street, for exceeding the speed limit.

Mrs. C. A. Burget and son, Gail, of Columbus, are guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Brown, of West Main street.

CORRESPONDENCE

DARBYVILLE.

Miss Ona Beatty has returned home from a visit in Cleveland. She also spent a few days with friends in Oxford before going to Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McKinley visited with her sister, Mrs. C. W. Davis and other relatives in Columbus Sunday.

Geneva Row from White Cross hospital spent Saturday afternoon and Sunday with her father, D. W. Row and family.

Mrs. R. L. Row and daughters, Bernice and Caroline, spent Thursday and Friday in Columbus guests of Mrs. Ida Conolly of 95 North Oakland avenue.

Nelson Florence and Morris Stainer went with the National guards Sunday for a two weeks' stay at Camp Perry.

Mrs. J. R. Hott spent Saturday in Columbus.

SALT CREEK VALLEY

A good safety hint says. One of the safest things to fall back on is good hard cash.

Winona Lanman, of Tarlton, spent last week visiting at Buckeye Lake.

The progress of our electric line down the valley will be somewhat delayed owing to the widening of the public highway which will cause the resetting of the electric poles for three miles but nevertheless we will get there just the same, just wait.

Sam Cox has returned home after spending several months with friends and relatives in and around Bluffton, Indiana.

The Lutheran social will be given at the church Wednesday evening, July 29, at Tarlton. Regular supper, ice cream and cake. The K. of P. band of Adelphi will furnish the music throughout the evening. Professor S. H. Myers of Detroit, will lead a community sing for the public. There will be music for each and every one distributed to the public. This will be an open air affair. Come and join in all. Miss Jeannette Wenrich, also of Detroit, will preside at the piano. Miss Wenrich has been playing for the radio WJX, Detroit. This will well be worth your time. Come out, the public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Murphy, of Columbus, were the Sunday guests of Noah Waliser and family. Mrs. Murphy will remain for the week.

Mrs. Louise Rittenour and two sons, Junior and Billy, of Birmingham, Alabama, are guests of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Irwin, of Tarlton.

Walter Schweitzer, of Chillicothe, is the guest of Arlow Walizer this week. Xunita Judy and Isabel McHorter of Columbus are the guests of Mildred Judy this week.

The dedication services of the Lutheran church last Sunday was largely attended. Rev. Paul W. Koller D. D. delivered the sermon in the morning. Rev. C. A. Robertson of Lancaster in the afternoon and Rev. J. Sittler in the evening with appropriate services all thru.

The holy communion services will be held at the Lutheran church Sunday morning at 10 a. m. You are cordially invited to attend these services.

Mrs. Mary Miesse and daughter of Columbus are visitors this week with Walter Miesse and family.

LOOKING AHEAD

Cleveland, July 21.—(U.P.)—Airplanes during the next generation will attain a speed of half a thousand miles an hour.

With their tremendous speed which will enable people to go to and from work rapidly they will transform cities into places to work and not to live.

This was predicted today by Major Reed Chambers, of Detroit, here to inspect the Cleveland air port and other flying fields. Chambers was a flyer in the world war for 22 months, seeing service on every front.

"Great stretches of country which are now farms will be turned into residential districts," he predicted.

"When you think of the tremendous speed of the airplane and the greater possible speed, this ceases to be a dream."

Producing Liquid Air

Liquid air is a transparent, bluish and intensely cold liquid slightly bluish color, and of about the same density as water. It is prepared by subjecting air to great pressure and then cooling it by its own expansion to a temperature below the boiling point of its constituents (nitrogen, 194 degrees centigrade; oxygen, 183 degrees centigrade). Its chief use is as a refrigerant.

SHOOTING POPULAR MEANS OF SLAYING IN STATE OF OHIO

Vital Statistics report: Also Shows Falls Caused More Fatalities in 1924 Than Did Automobiles—741 Kill Selves.

Firearms are the most popular means of killing oneself or others in Ohio, a final report filed yesterday by I. C. Plummer, chief of the division of vital statistics of the state health department shows. It covers 1922, 1923 and 1924.

Falls caused more deaths than automobile accidents in 1924, while aeroplanes are so safe that a third more persons were killed by animals, either wild or domestic, than met death through joy-riding in the sky. Although the war has been ended for nearly seven years, 44 persons died in Ohio last year of war wounds.

Population of the state July 1, 1924, was 6,219,269. Plummer's report estimates an increase of 102,204 during the year.

To return to the firearms—there were 741 suicides in the state in 1924, and 274 of them were by shooting. The same method proved most effective in ridding the neighborhood of persons one dislikes, too, for, of the 430 homicides, 276 met death at the muzzle of a gun. Homicides by cutting or stabbing totaled only 61, while by all other means, including several poisonings, they amounted to 80.

A total of 173 persons committed suicide by drowning during the year, and 173 by hanging themselves. Twenty-two used the poison route to end their lives, and 119 took "corrosive substances." Only 17 did it by jumping off a roof, while five resorted to "crushing" of some sort to end their lives.

The chapter of accidents upsets several prevalent ideas about comparative dangers of various means of travel and occupation. Airplane and balloon accidents killed only 16 persons during 1924, while animals killed 27. These did not include the five killed by snakes and mad dogs or other poisonous animals, but counted only those actually slain by animals, probably mostly farm animals.

Then there were automobiles that killed 1,036 others. This was a decrease, by the way, of nearly 100 from the auto fatalities of the previous year. Street car accidents killed 155 and railroad accidents, 166, including persons struck by trains.

Lightning proved to be not very dangerous, and only 11 were killed by it. On the other hand accidental shocks from live wires or other transmitters of controlled electricity killed 77. Excessive heat was more often fatal than lightning, causing 47 deaths during the year, while only four died of excessive cold. There was a total of 5,084 accidental deaths in the state during the year.

During the year there were 69,912 deaths in the state, and 132,058 births. This is the greatest number of births ever recorded in one year in the state. The death rate for the state was 11.23 per 1,000 population, as compared to 12.27 for the preceding year.

Gallia county had the highest death rate, 18.2 per 1,000, and Summit county, in spite of the city of Akron in its midst, had the lowest, 7.8 per 1,000 population.

Columbus had a death rate of 13.3, with a total of 3,533 deaths. The lowest death rate is credited to Kenmore, with a percentage of 4.4 but here again enters the equation of the fluctuating population of Akron and its suburbs. Akron had a death rate of only 7.7, the lowest of any big city. Population has been decreasing since the census, it was pointed out, while the rate was figured on the old population.

FAMILY REUNION

Party In Best Condition To Open Fight Than For Many Years, Dye Says.

Columbus, July 22.—Contributions to the Democratic party are beginning to come in and the party is in better condition to open the fight than it has been for many years, State Chairman T. E. Dye said yesterday, after the meeting of the state financial committee at the Deshler.

He declined to divulge the amounts received since the close of last campaign, but said the party has a surplus of $2,137.73. Reports that there was a $9,000 surplus in the treasury were incorrect, Dye asserted.

Chapter III

No, the rain does not damage Celetex Insulating Lumber. It is not effected by moisture and weather conditions. In many homes two-thirds of the heat in winter is wasted. Celetex stops heat waste without adding to the cost of building.

No home can be comfortable in all weather and is not modern unless properly insulated.

Celetex Insulating Lumber is used in thousands of refrigerator cars to keep heat in during winter and out during summer. It will do the same for the Built-Well Home.

Be sure and visit Monclair Addition now and see this home being built and covered with its warm coat before the weather-boarding and plaster goes on.

Mannish Tailleur and Chic Ensemble

Two Most Popular Fashions of Season Combined in Latest Mode.

The mode has acquired a complex—and a Freudian complex to boot, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. Having freed itself from the tyranny of the tubular outline, it has stepped blithely into the maelstrom of the masculine influence in dress versus the feminine, and milady is still unable to rest easy in the lap of fashion. Contrast the mannish tailleur and the essential feminine ensemble, the simple unadorned suits with the frilly and intricate dresses of the new season, the mold and flare with the straight line, and you will begin to appreciate the numerous conflicting issues which have been raised by the Paris couture. Out of the varied maze of themes it is clearly evident that the mode must either follow the stricter lines of the mannish tailleur, the gentler influence of the feminine ensemble, or else arrive at some happy compromise.

The ensemble is the leading exponent of the feminine influence in spring dress, and it is equally a leader in the revolt from the hackneyed tubular silhouette. The theme, of course, may be and frequently is extended to hats, hosiery, shoes and the various other accessories of dress, but in its essential form it consists of a dress and coat which are brought into a single identity by means of fabric trimming or fabric design. The most usual linking liaison is a printed material which is used for the dress and the lining of the coat, and which appears not infrequently upon sleeves, collar and hemline as well. Granted that there is no longer anything novel in the theme—it was originally introduced in the winter of 1923-24—its principal virtue lies in the fact that its novel effects cannot be easily imitated. On that basis numerous authorities insist that the ensemble as constituted today has acquired a definite permanent place in the mode, but we are among the decided dissenters from that proposition.

Long Coat and Flared Dress.

Ensemble dresses are normally of silk, principally georgette crepe, satin, crepe-satin, chiffon and taffeta, while the coats are usually developed in wool and silk. Except for Chanel, the Paris designers have chosen the three-quarter, seven-eighths or full-length coat to accompany these costumes, and Chanel has chosen the short coat only to be worn with her well-known jumper effects. Redingotes and an occasional suggestion of the directoire are noteworthy in the new ensemble coats. The most frequent combination is the three-quarter kasha coat lined with printed silk and the silk frock with a hemline flare.

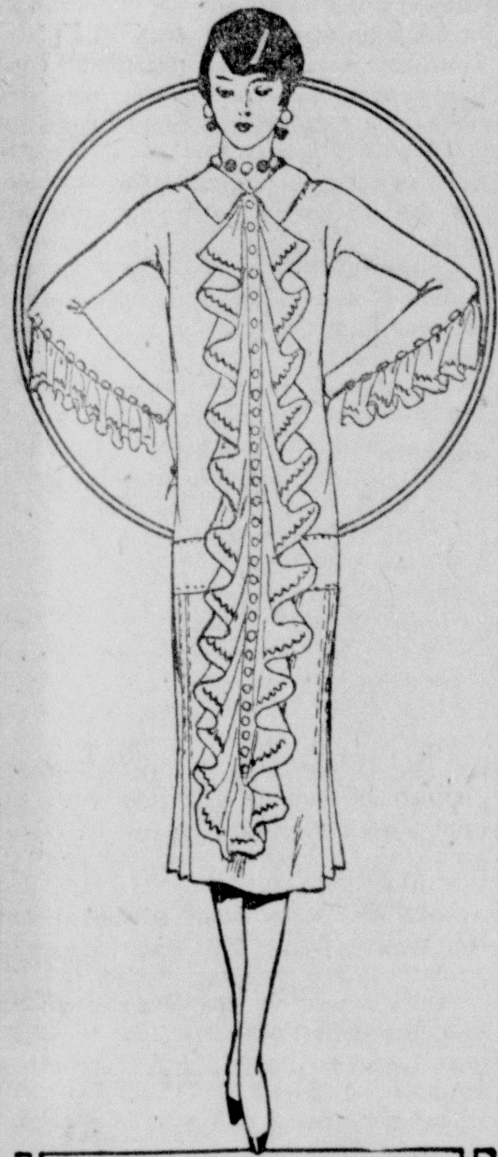

The only obstacle which prevents the spring ensemble from achieving

harmonizes with the abbreviated hemline, but because it stands out in sharp contrast to the long coats of the ensemble.

Let it not be thought, however, that the new tailleur always adheres to the conservative lines of former years. It is true that in fabric and color it typically conforms to the substantial, non-radical standards of the past, but it has been spurred by the example of the ensemble to acquire many novel details. One of these is the use of opposing materials for the jacket and skirt; another the featuring of elaborate high-colored linings for the jacket, and the repetition of this same color as a trimming for the outside of both coat and skirt.

The Mode Compromised.

The issue between tailleur and ensemble is still clouded. Each has its salient points. The ensemble shows a new silhouette—and a changed outline has been one of the urgent needs of the mode for several seasons. The tailored suit is an entirely different conception and it expresses simplicity unadorned. The first includes jabots, high collars, and all the other frilly furbelows; the second is plain, in comparatively somber shades, and is developed in the typical, severe O'Rossen manner.

The complete wardrobe, of course, will include both tailleur and ensemble, but there are frugal ladies with limited budgets who are compelled to align themselves with only one of the spring leaders. For them, these precepts. Both themes are en regle—the ensemble is far the safer choice, but the tailleur has a more sporting appeal. Its interlude may be brief and it will not reach the numerical strength of the ensemble this spring, but its proponents will be found in the most fashionable places.

Yet in the last analysis the gentle opportunist will take advantage of a liberal mode and choose according to her type. It isn't always that the opportunity is presented of selecting freely and with a definite assurance of correctness, and the chic demoielle is certain to improve a situation which is unusual if not unique in the annals of fashion. Only one real danger confronts her, and this she must studiously avoid lest she join the malaprops of the mode. When a tailor-made is selected it must be essentially tailor-made—mannish, severe, and with none of the haunting femininity of the ensemble. And, conversely, the ensemble must avoid the straight rigidity of the tailleur and embody instead the flare and all the airy fragility of the afternoon dress. A tailleur that is half ensemble is not a tailleur at all, and an ensemble that is severely tailored bears too close a resemblance to last year's styles to be smart. Hybrid compromises are decidedly non grata in the new spring fashions, and every costume must be expressed distinctly according to the tenets of its type.

Kasha Daytime Dresses.

Kasha is the basis of the Lanvin daytime dresses that are seen on the streets of Paris and at the exclusive rendezvous. She uses it in every pastel shade as well as in the striking vivid green hue that bears her name. Used alone it is plaited, embroidered, quilted and painted. Combined with other materials it shows the adaptability of kasha, which is charming with a silk-like surah or printed marocain and equally attractive with lace or chiffon gowns. Though it is principally utilized for the sports suit and morning frock, Lanvin has extended the use of kasha to the afternoon dress as well.

The polka dot has taken the place of the large embroidered or appliqued circles that were so popular last season. It is always attractive whether it appears printed on silks and crepe de chine, embroidered in metal threads on taffeta or in fine silk threads on chiffon or organdie. Lanvin uses dots of graduated sizes in haphazard pyramids along the hem of a full-skirted picture dress. She scatters them along the outer curve of an elaborate sleeve and sprinkles them over a corsage in a long narrow point from neck to waist.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. a landslide this season is the tailored suit, which is bravely returning after a dismally cold reception last year. The tailleur boasts a long line of inspiring sponsors this season both in the ranks of the haute monde and in the ranks of the equally haute couture—it is a definite response to the trend toward unadorned simplicity and its vogue for spring already is distinctly assured in smart circles.

The silhouette of the tailormade is comparatively undistinguished—it is short, straight, and subject to none of the allurements of the frilly ensemble. In its typical form the tailleur consists of a jacket and skirt of the same material and either a silk waist or a pique waistcoat. The jackets are short or long, but the skirt does not share that indecision—it is always short, and is sometimes curtailed beyond the point of artistry. Our own preference is for the short jacket as well—not only because it

Finds Pilgrim's Progress in Four of Psalms

Seattle.—An Old Testament "Pilgrim's Progress" has been found in four of the psalms by Dr. Herbert H. Gowen, professor of oriental languages and literature at the University of Washington.

Doctor Gowen's translation differs from the standard one. He says he has preserved as nearly as possible the original meter of the Old Testament songs and has diligently connected the four chants into a continuous story of the pilgrims' return to the promised land.

"The conception behind the four psalms, which begin with the 120th, was the return of the Jewish exiles from Babylonian captivity," Doctor Gowen said. "The joy of the returning captives as they noticed the hills of their native land and the towers of Jerusalem is reflected in the songs."

Glacier Park, Mont.—United States Forest Ranger Lewis Hanson of the Two Medicine valley in Glacier National park fed flapjacks all winter to a mink, a weasel, a skunk and two gray squirrels. The mink, weasel and the squirrels got so tame they ate out of his hand, but he left the skunk to wait on itself "cafeteria fashion." Veteran troopers of the Rocky Mountains say this is the first time they ever heard of a mink or a weasel getting tame enough to eat out of a man's hand.

The incident came to official notice when Ranger Hanson kept reporting a shortage in flour rations. The chief ranger, when he discovered what Ranger Hanson was doing with the flour, was first inclined to reprimand the subordinate, but on looking over the rules and regulations, he changed his mind and allowed the extra supply. In Uncle Sam's manual, forest rangers are instructed to be kind to animals.

Ranger Hanson's amiability has extended to more species than any other has yet made pets of in the wilds of the Rockies.

"Of course, in the tourist season, it's different, but during the lonely months of the long winter a fellow has a friendly feeling for anything with life in it," Ranger Hanson volunteered. "These animals evidently felt the same way about it, for they kept hanging around my cabin door all winter, and I sure couldn't regard 'em as anything but companions of the wilds."

"But that darned skunk! I just couldn't bring myself to fondle him, although the poor devil almost wagged his tail as friendly as a dog when he approached me begging for the flapjacks which he had seen me feed to the other animals. I had to laugh at myself at times, when I was almost convinced that he was sincerely friendly in the wagging of that tail."

"Once I was on the verge of giving him the hand offering just to show that I had no partiality for the other animals. I guess if I had had two suits of clothes I might have done it."

$4,000 FOR COURTESY

James Gray, a conductor of the Capital Traction company in Washington, is to receive $4,000 for his courtesy in helping a little gray-haired woman on and off his car. For five years she had been riding on his car and he often let others wait while he escorted her to the curb. The other day he received a letter from her daughter saying that Mrs. Mary Ward had died and left him $4,000 for his courtesy.

Migratory Birds Wing Way Back to Alaska

St. Michael, Alaska.—Thousands of wild water fowl are completing the last leg of their long migration from the Gulf of Mexico and Lower California to the great delta of the Yukon river and its maze of shallow waterways. Here in the thousands of square miles of grassy marsh the waterfowl find an abundance of mollusks, fish and vegetable food.

Great flocks of Canadian geese and ducks have been arriving for two weeks, making the air vibrate with their honking as they seek landing places. In the reaches of dried grass from which the snow only recently receded.

Green-winged teal, gulls and terns have established nesting grounds near the roar of the Bering sea breakers. Cormorants, snipe, coots and horned puffins have been arriving daily in immense flocks, already mated for the season of brooding.

Among the rarer waterfowl nesting on the lower Yukon are swan, blue heron and crane. These three species strangely seem to like each other's company, and nest, hunt and fly together.

About the congested bird city are the arch enemies, crows, magpies, eagles, foxes and weasels, watching every opportunity to prey on eggs or young birds.

MAN WHO KILLED BLACKMAILERGuy Shaw Near Canton, Confessed To Sheriff—May Not Be Prosecuted.

Canton, July 21.—(UP.)—George H. Walton, 23, crack shot of the local gun club, today admitted the slaying of Guy Shaw, 43, alleged blackmailer of roadside "petting" parties.

Sheriff Kirk said Walton would not be prosecuted if he agreed to assist the state in the trial of seven other men whom Shaw is said to have led in blackmailing activities along Stark county highways. The seven are under arrest.

Walton said he and a girl companion had parked their automobile near a rural school house Sunday night to eat some sandwiches when Shaw and three other men approached. Shaw jumped upon the running board of the car and demanded hush money.

"As Shaw reached for his revolver I pulled mine out from under the seat cushion and shot him in the chest," Walton told the Sheriff.

Shaw's body was found yesterday.

STANFORD'S BONFIRE

Here is one of the greatest bonfires that was ever built in the country, measuring 30 feet by 30 feet at the base and rising to a height of 70 feet. It was built by the freshmen at Stanford university in California for an annual ceremony.

WEAK SCHOOL DISTRICTS IN STATE OF OHIOFour Million Dollars Paid Yearly to Aid in Education in 24 Poor Counties.

Twenty-four "poor" counties in Ohio are educating their children with money supplied by the other 64 counties with little or no prospect of ever reaching a self-sustaining basis, it became known Wednesday. A walk-out of the entire staff of 32 teachers of the Pomeroy schools occurred this week as a direct result of this situation.

Scarcity of jobs in the teaching profession this year probably will prevent the walkouts from becoming general, but the counties under state aid appropriations will have to take what is left" after other districts finish hiring, officials of state department of education said.

Low appraisal rates of property, including valuable coal lands in some of the districts, is responsible for the limited income and causes the property loss that makes these counties "charity patients" in the Ohio educational system. There is no relief in sight, and they probably will continue receiving aid from the state treasury it was said.

The Pomeroy teachers were ousted by their board of education when they refused to sign contracts to teach nine months for eight months pay. Some of them have been teachers in Pomeroy for 25 years. Similar situations exist in the other counties and cities which are unable to finance their own educational systems.

Little danger of a shortage in teachers is apparent now, because of the general surplus of teachers all over the state. Department of education officials point out that boards of education this year have a greater range of selection than usual because of the unusual number of applicants for jobs.

State laws require at least eight months of school in all districts in Ohio, but most of the local rules particularly in cities and village, require nine months' school. Counties receive state aid for eight months only, however, and many of them are trying to "get by" on this and so run their schools nine months in the year by compelling teachers to teach one month without pay.

The state department of education will not recommend state aid for more than eight-month school terms. Director Vernon M. Riegel said. This is the legal minimum, and the state should not be required to help for longer terms than that, he said.

Low appraisal value of property in the counties in question is responsible for their poverty-stricken condition, it was admitted. Frequently the property actually is of little value, being hill lands not suitable for intensive farming and not highly productive under present conditions.

In many of the counties which receive state aid, however, coal lands worth as high as $1,000 an acre, are carried on the tax duplicates as farm lands, at values ranging as low as $15 an acre.

Many of these holdings are actually being worked as mines, producing coal. There are also some oil lands included in the same class. There is no present means of changing this situation, Director Riegel said.

State aid in the 24 counties amounts to about $4,000,000 a year, which helps in the education of approximately 115,000 children. Counties, on the average, pay about half the cost, which amounts to about $35 a year for each child. The state pays the rest. Director Riegel said this figure is not unreasonable.

There is no means of placing a tax on products taken from the land in the counties in question, he said. This not only is not permitted by Ohio laws, but would only "come from the people" in the end, by increasing the price of coal to the extent of the amount of the tax. Money now used for this purpose comes in indirect taxation from public utilities.

Suggestions that coal being exported from the state be taxed to pay the additional revenue needed by the coal producing counties have been offered, he said, but would only result in further difficulties of Ohio coal in competing in out-of-the-state markets, and require a heavy force to collect the taxes and check up on shipments.

Tax levies are up to the limit in the impoverished counties and the only possibility of their raising more revenues from taxation lies in the possible higher appraisal of property within their boundaries.

A law requiring reappraisal of property every six years probably will require appraisals in many of these districts within two or three years, it was pointed out. This probably will not result in sufficient increase to relieve the situation, however.

Teachers in the "poor" counties apparently, will have to continue teaching nine months a year on eight months' pay indefinitely. Teaching standards have not been lowered greatly in any of the counties affected, as yet, Director Riegel said in spite of the lowered pay.

Centralizing of schools and consolidations may offer some relief. There are now, in Ohio 425 centralized schools, according to a survey recently completed by George M. Morris rural school supervisor in the department. There were only 50 such schools 10 years ago. There are still 1987 teachers in as many one-room schools. They teach an average of 16 pupils. The number of these teachers could be reduced by half the survey shows, by consolidating and centralizing schools.

ATTENDED FUNERAL.

FIVE LUMPS OF SUGAR
By ALBERT W. TOLMAN

IT WAS raining that tropic noon on the northern horizon up toward Mindoro, as if misty fingers were sponging the color from the fringe of the copper sky. The five castaways in the typhoon-battered dinghy looked at the bronze splotch thirstily, picturing heaven beyond those low clouds hovering vaporously and benignantly over the unseen land where men had food to eat and water to drink and trees to shade them from the sun.

Ah Sing, the Malay steward, was busy with turned back in the bow; the four whites gave him no heed. Soon he faced them, a small sack in his hand, his black eyes glittering snakily under his low yellow forehead.

"It is better that one should die than five. Meat and drink are ours, if we will. In my country we gamble with lumps of sugar, that man winning or losing on whose lump a fly shall first alight. It is a fair game, even though used by dogs like myself, unworthy to lick up the crumbs from white men's tables."

His thin lips sneered venomously. His eyes shot glances of baleful fire. From the sack he shook into his flat palm five sugar cubes, the last of their dwindled rations.

"Let us play this game, each staking his life on the lump he chooses. Allah will send a fly, and the man on whose piece it first sets foot shall yield his body as food for the rest."

The whites shrank from him in disgust and horror, but the tempting Malay voice purred on:

"It is free and fair; no man shares, unless he risks; no man risks unless he wishes to share. His risk is one to four; his chances of sharing are four to one."

Dead silence brooded over the boat. The brains of the men were boiling in their skulls, their throats were parched, their blood was thick. For days no food or drink had passed their lips. They stared dully out across the pale blue sea. Behind the dinghy trailed a patient black fin, waiting, waiting.

Ah Sing's eyes gleamed furtively, as he watched them pondering. With a swift gesture he plucked a cube from his open palm.

"I will take the first."

He extended his lean hand to the others, his voice vibrant and masterful.

"Choose."

Cracked lips growling assent, they chose mechanically with averted faces. Ah Sing's steady fingers placed his lump on the thwart, and each white followed with him with trembling hand, knowing that he might be sealing his own death warrant. They waited, intently, hungrily, jealously, fearfully, fiercely, feeling their lives shrink to the compass of the brittle cubes they watched.

Out of nowhere appeared a fly, and alighted on the gunwale. Its wings were burnished, its body bottle green. Its eyes like points of fire. To one of the five it was the angel of death, sent by Allah or the devil.

Abruptly it sprang into the air, and hung above the thwart with fanning wings. No one breathed. For a moment it hovered over the steward's lump, and his yellow face blanched ashen. Then it darted down upon the captain's.

The others turned sickly; but the Malay, uttering a cry of savage joy, drew his needle-pointed knife, and with teeth bared crouched for the spring on his chief. Suddenly the mate regained his voice.

"Seize that man!" croaked he; and a sailor wrapped his gaunt arms about Ah Sing, and held him, struggling and furious.

The mate picked up the steward's lump; on the thwart beneath lay a dark moist spot. He smelled the cube, then turned in wrath on the writhing Malay.

"This lump has been soaked in kerosene. No fly would alight on it, even if he were starving."

With cries of rage the others threw themselves on the traitor. But he flung them off, menacing with his keen blade, and went headlong overboard. The black fin astern slid up alongside and disappeared in a flurry of foam, leaving a slowly spreading stain of blood.

The four, breathing hard, questioned one another with their eyes. The mate answered for all:

"No; we'll die like white men."

He flung the lumps into the sea. The hours dragged by, silent, hot and leaden, each bringing nearer insensibility and death.

It was raining again at sunset up toward Mindoro, but the men in the dinghy did not heed it. A short, fat steamer, throwing black smoke, was wallowing toward them; and that was heaven enough.

Greater Than Solomon
According to Phoenician tradition, Solomon was not the wisest man who ever lived. The Phoenician claim is that Abdemon of Tyre was not only able to solve all the riddles proposed by Solomon but gave the latter problems which the king of Israel was unable to cope with. Solomon, so the story goes, had worsted Hiram, king of Tyre, in a battle forfeit. To vindicate the honor of his country, Abdemon entered the lists and won back all the money Hiram had lost, and a great deal more.

WILL ROGERS DISCUSSES WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Says If Newspapers Refused To Tell of Dayton Trial Commoner Would Be Back in Florida so Quick You Would Think He Had Been Nominated For Something.

Andrew Jackson brought undying fame to the glorious state of Tennessee. He did it by personal bravery and unmatched native intelligence. He reached the White House, the highest prize in the gift of the American people, but it remained for a product of the corn tassels of Nebraska and the under-water realtor from Florida to bring a dignified commonwealth onto the comic pages of every periodical in the world.

"Hickory" Jackson's work of a lifetime has all been undone by the self-advertisement of William Jennings Bryan. It is generally conceded that it was done to advertise Dayton, but why make a monkey out of Tennessee? Tennessee claims they didn't descend from a monkey, but their actions in this case seem to prove otherwise. If a man is a gentleman he don't have to announce it; all he has to do is to act like one and let the world decide. No man should have to prove in court what he is, or what he came from. As far as Scopes teaching children evolution, nobody is going to change the belief of Tennessee children as to their ancestry. It is from the action of their parents that they will form their opinions.

Bryan says he is appearing there for no pay, but you just let every newspaper in the United States decide not to say a word about this trial and Bryan will be back in Florida so quick you will think he has been nominated for something.

Bryan should appear for nothing. He ought to pay Scopes's fine. It has been almost like a Democratic convention year for Bryan. It's the most publicity any politician ever got in an off year. Why, it's just like Peggy Joyce finding a new millionaire husband.

If Darwin hadn't died before Bryan was old enough to maneuver, I would have bet that Bryan framed up the theory with Darwin, but as he didn't he should at least thank him and give him the credit and when he dies leave all his money to some animal institute.

Bryan says if he fails in this case that Christianity is thru. Why, even when our Savior came down to earth He didn't make it that assertive. There is nowhere in the Bible any prediction of what would have happened if he had failed.

You can't stop a man thinking; neither do I think Bryan could start a serious man thinking. These fellows who honestly believe that their great great-grandfathers were as proficient with their toes as with their fingers, they have that right just as much as Bryan has the right to seriously believe he is a second Messiah and that Nebraska was the modern manger.

Now, all joking aside, can you seriously imagine the future of Christianity (which means the whole world) depending upon what Bryan proves at this trial? Darwin started this thing years ago, and Christianity hadn't done much tottering up to the time Bryan began to have fears for it.

Pride of Ancestry.
There is a terrible lot of us who don't think that we came from a monkey, but if there are some people who think that they do, why, it's not our business to rob them of what little pleasure they may get out of imagining it. Most people are proud of their ancestry and it is a touchy thing for even a Bryan to cast reflections on any man's forefathers, even if he did arrive here on all fours. What good will it do at this late date to argue over how or who we came from?

Why don't Bryan and a lot of other people let the world alone? What has been the matter with it up to now? I can show you millions of people that think it is great, and are not worrying even if we arrived here from a tadpole. If the Lord had wanted us to know exactly how, and where, and when we come, He would have let us know in the first place. He didn't leave any room for doubt when He told you how you should act when you got here. His example and the Commandments are plain enough, so just start from there; never mind going back any farther. If he had wanted Bryan to have all the details He would have told him. The Lord put all these millions of people over the earth. They don't all agree on how they got here, and ninety per cent don't care. But He was pretty wise when He did see to it that they all do agree on one thing (whether Christian, Heathen or Mohammedan), and that is that the better lives you live the better you will finish.

Fond of the Commoner.
Now, personally, I like Bill, in fact, I am very fond of him. He is a nice congenial old gentleman, and I can recall many happy chats with him. But when he says that he will make this his life's issue and take it up thru all the various courts, and finally endeavor to get it into the constitution of the United States and make a political and presidential issue of it, he is wrong. More wrong than he has ever been before. These other things he was wrong on didn't do much harm, but now he is going to try and drag something that pertains to the Bible into a political campaign. He can't ever do that. He might make Tennessee the side-show of America, but he can't make a street-carnival of the whole United States.

As for changing the constitution—that has been done every day. They have juggled it around until it looks like a moving picture of a popular book (it's so different from the original). But when those old Boys who blue-printed the first constitution decided that a man can believe what he likes in regard to religion, that's one line that is going to stay put. If Bryan keeps on agitating after this trial, regardless of the consequences he will be doubly wrong.

You know, he has a very big following; some real people; honest-to-goodness folks, that really believe in him, and have confidence in him. Any of these other issues of his the people could forget or laugh off, but when you get people riled up on a religious question, it is serious, and he would be directly responsible for some very serious consequences and lots of ill-feeling, and perhaps bloodshed over something that up to now has never been necessary.

Bryan wasn't put on earth as a leader; his records show that. He was put on earth as an example. He says this is the beginning of a great religious revival that will start in Dayton, finally reaching Florida. Bill is wrong again. No great religious revival will ever be started from an argument over where we came from. The religious revival of the future, when it is started, will be the people's fear over where we are going.

Bryan is not going to be able to scare the world into believing that the Lord is going to send anybody to Hell just because they don't know how, or from whom, they arrived here. I don't know how I got here, but I will just stay ignorant and take my chances at the end, rather than Bryan's chances if he willingly stirs up religious hatred among his fellowmen.—Will Rogers in Cincinnati Enquirer.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity
Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide
(1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
(2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
(3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.
This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.
Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

THE COUNCIL AT JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:1-35.
"GOLDEN TEXT"—"We believe that
through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they."
Acts 15:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Friend
of Little Children.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Great Gathering
at Jerusalem.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-
IC—The Council at Jerusalem.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-
IC—What Is Christian Liberty?

I. The Controversy in the Church at Antioch (vv. 1-5).

This difficulty was a most serious
one for it threatened the disruption of the church into a Jewish and a Gentile
division. It was not a question of the admission of the Gentiles into the church. That had been settled some years before when Peter received Cor-
nellius and his household. The question now was, on what ground could
they be received? Should Gentile converts be required to keep the Mosaic
law as a condition of salvation? This issue was brought on by the coming of
certain men from Jerusalem, who declared, "Except ye be circumcised
after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved (v. 1)." The question was so difficult that Paul and Barnabas were unable to put the men to silence. These Jewish legalists had the letter of the Scripture on their side. They could point to the command in which
this was enjoined upon believers
(Gen. 17:14). Paul could not point to any Scripture where it had been abrogated. If Paul could plead that Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, his antagonists could answer, "Yes, but after justification the rite was divinely imposed." The brethren at Antioch decided to refer
the matter to the mother church at Jerusalem. Accordingly, Paul and Barnabas and others were sent as a deputation to Jerusalem. At an informal reception by the church at Jerusalem they rehearsed the things
which God had done for them.

II. The Deliberations of the Coun- cil (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter's Speech (vv. 6-11).
He argued that God had borne witness to His acceptance of the Gentiles
by giving the Holy Spirit to them as unto the Jews (Acts 10:34-47). Since,
therefore, God had not made a difference it would be folly for them to do
so.

2. Paul and Barnabas Rehearsed
Their Experience (v. 12).

They told how God had set his seal
of approval on their preaching of salvation by grace through faith, apart
from works, by the working of signs
and wonders through them.

3. The Argument of James (vv.
14-21).

He took the declaration of Peter and
showed how it harmonized with the prophecy of Amos (Amos 9:11-15).
He showed that the reception of the Gentiles was not in conflict with God's plan, but in strict harmony therewith.
As set forth by James, God's plan is
as follows:

(1) To take out from among the Gentiles a people for His name (v.
14). This is what is now going on—
the preaching of the gospel to the ends
of the earth, and the calling out of the church.

(2) After the church is completed
and removed, the Hebrew nation will
be converted and restored to its own
land and privileges by the Lord Himself at His return (vv. 16-17).

(3) Following this will be the conversion of the world through the
agency of converted Israel (v. 17, cf.
Rom. 11:15). He showed that there is no conflict when the Scriptures are rightly divided.

His judgment was that the Gentiles
should not be troubled with things that are Jewish, but should be warned
against the perils of heathenism, such
as meat offered to idols, fornication
and blood.

III. The Decision (vv. 22-23).

The Mother church came to unanimous agreement and accepted the resolution offered by James. The apostles and elders not only sent a letter
stating the decision of the conference,
but took the wise precaution to send influential men along with Paul and Barnabas to bear the same testimony
by word of mouth. The letter denied
the authority of the Judaizing teachers (v. 24), and stated the method by which this decision had been reached (vv. 25-27). They put the Holy Spirit
first.

IV. The Decision Delivered to the Church (vv. 30-35).

The church was called together to hear the report. Its reading brought rejoicing. They were now free to prosecute the great missionary work.

Pay Pallbearers
Pittsburgh.—The pallbearers, who carried the coffin in which Mary J. Griffith was buried, will receive $2 each for their kindness, by a stipulation in her will. The unusual bequests became known when the document was filed here for probate. Another clause bequeaths $5 to the minister who officiated at the funeral services. Her household effects and $4,500 were left to friends and relatives.
By 1926, 20,000,000 motor vehicles will be in use in the United States, it is predicted.

Keeps Kitchens Kool

WHY fire up the old coal range and swelter while preparing the meals these terribly hot days? Why heat up the entire range just to heat a little water, or make a cup of coffee? Keep your kitchen kool and comfortable with an oil stove.

ALCAZAR

oil cook stoves are fully guaranteed by the factory to give perfect satisfaction. YOU TAKE NO CHANCES. No need to fire up the coal range and hold the fire all day. In less than five minutes you can have a "red-hot" fire for cooking and ironing. And when you have finished your work, turn your fire out.

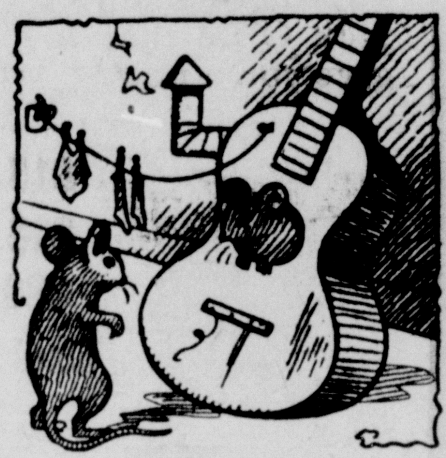

We will gladly demonstrate our line of oil cooks, and will furnish you with the names of our users for reference.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

SAD DISAPPOINTMENT
"Why do you look so sorrowful, Murphy?" asked Pat.
"I just heard a man call another man a liar?" replied Murphy, "and the man that was called a liar said the other man would have to apologize or there would be a fight."
"And why should that make you so sad?"
"The other man apologized."

The Trade Secret
"Bridget, didn't I hear you quarreling with the milkman this morning?"
"Ye did not, ma'am. I enquired for the health of a milkmaid at the dairy, who's ill."
"Yes, and—"
"Says I, 'How's the milkmaid?' An' he got in a tempest o' fury, an' said, 'That's a thrade secret.'"
The Modern Way
Lawyer—In order to fight your case intelligently I must know whether you are guilty or not.
Client—Well, if you must know the truth, I'm guilty.
Lawyer—Ah, now the affair is quite simple. All we have to do is to establish an alibi.

MUSICAL MICE

Mrs. Mouse—Yes, since we have been living in an ukulele the children have become very musical!
A Tragedy
They stood beneath the mistletoe. He knew not what to do, For he was only five feet tall And she was six feet two.

Too Much Support
A young man went into a restaurant and asked for eggs medium boiled. What he got was 20-minute eggs.
"Why don't you complain?" asked the elderly man next to him. "I see your eggs are hard-boiled."
"So is the waitress."

Business Looking Up
Dealer—What! You say Mrs. DeWitt bought a gallon of gasoline to kindle her kitchen fire! Didn't you tell her not to?
Clerk—No. I thought we might be able to sell her a new cookstove.—Good Hardware.

Traffic Episode
"Miss," said the traffic cop, "you have dazzling lamps."
As he stepped up and peered into the car, she turned on him another pair of dazzling lamps.
He gulped and waved her along.

Not So Good
John (dreamily)—You remind me of my mother.
Billie (scenting proposal)—Yes?
John—Yes. You're always telling me to behave and threatening to call in father.

Close
Smith—Old Hawkins is getting to be a cheap guy.
Jones—Yeah. He used to light his cigar with a $10 bill and now the old tightwad uses a five.

ADVERTISING PAYS

"They say Miss Yellowleaf proposed to her fiancé by radio."
"This broadcasting certainly does bring results."

The Resignation
Bring forth the photograph he took When he appeared in style And private business first forsook— The one that wears a smile.

One Way
She—I'd like to go for a long holiday where I'd be entirely cut off from the world.
He—Why not try a telephone booth?

Lucky
Humorist (eyeing editor's check)—I certainly don't get what's coming to me for my jokes.
Editor—You're lucky.

One Little Yea Among the Noes

During the Republican National convention of 1920 the leaders behind the scenes, fearing Senator Hiram Johnson might kick over the traces in the event of the nomination of a Presidential candidate displeasing to him, repeatedly made overtures to the Californian to take the second place on the ticket. Invariably Johnson declined the proposition. Toward the last he showed signs of temper.

At this critical period the stage managers invoked the offices of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., as an intermediary. They counted on the friendship which had existed between Johnson and young Roosevelt's father. Johnson was as briskly emphatic in stating his position to young Colonel Roosevelt as he had been in his language to earlier emissaries.

Nevertheless, right up to the eleventh hour the bosses trusted that Johnson might be induced to change his mind. Three of us, all newspaper correspondents, were in Johnson's room at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago on the night before the ticket was named, when Johnson's secretary came to say that Colonel Roosevelt was on the telephone, desiring to speak with him. Johnson took down the receiver, and we heard him say this, with pauses between words:

"No—no—no—no—yes—no—NO!"

When Senator Johnson had hung up the receiver and returned to his seat, one of those present said: "Senator, I'm curious to know what the question from Colonel Roosevelt was which caused you to reply in the affirmative when all your other answers were such positive noes."

Johnson's eyes twinkled.

"That," he said, "was when the young man asked me if I could hear distinctly what he was saying."

Naval Observatory Works Them Out After Study of Sun and Moon.

Washington.—Prolonged study of the vagaries of the sun and the moon has enabled scientists of the United States naval observatory here to work out their eclipses for the next three years. Under the direction of Capt. W. S. Eichelberger they now are starting on the 1929 eclipses.

An annular eclipse of the sun—an eclipse where the rim of the sun shows outside of the eclipsed area—is forecast for July 20-21, this year, but will be invisible in the United States. A partial eclipse of the moon is due August 4, being more or less visible in the eastern states, and wholly visible on the Pacific coast.

There will be no eclipses of the moon next year, but there will be a total eclipse of the sun on January 14, 1926. It will be visible only from Africa to the Indian ocean, and the naval observatory will send a party from here to Sumatra to observe it.

Eclipse Visible July 9-10, 1926.

An annular eclipse of the sun will be visible July 9-10, 1926, in the central Pacific ocean, and as a partial in northern Australia, the eastern edge of Asia, the United States and Mexico.

In 1927 there will be five eclipses—three of the sun and two of the moon. Seven eclipses in a year is the maximum, five of the sun and two of the moon, and the least number in a twelvemonth is two, both of the sun, as will be the case in 1926.

An annular solar eclipse, visible in the southern Pacific, will occur January 3, 1927. A total of the moon, June 15, will be visible in the Atlantic ocean, North America, except the northern border, South America and the Pacific ocean. A total of the sun, June 29, will be visible in Europe, appearing as a near-total at Nome, Alaska. Another total of the moon in 1927 will take place December 8, visible generally in the Pacific ocean and in the northern part of North America. A partial eclipse of the sun will occur on December 24.

Mercury Dot on Sun.

Another heavenly phenomenon will be seen in 1927 in the transit of Mercury, which will appear as a dot on the sun. On November 10 the transit will take place, visible generally in the Pacific ocean, Australia and Asia, except in the northern and western portions. It will be visible at Honolulu, Manila and Samoa.

In 1928 three of the sun and two of the moon will be the order of eclipses. Captain Eichelberger considers that the total solar eclipse of May 19 that year will be a curious one, only part of the resulting shadow falling on the earth, appearing as a piece on the south of Africa, and as a partial in South Africa and the southern part of South America.

A total of the moon, June 3, will be visible in the western parts of North and South America, the Pacific ocean, Australia and the eastern border of Asia. Partial solar eclipses will occur June 17 and November 12, a total of the moon transpiring November 27, visible in the western hemisphere.

Horses Cross Rockies on Improvised "Shoes"

Missoula, Mont.—Weather conditions in some parts of northern Montana, particularly in the mountain sections, make it necessary at times to resort to rather unusual efforts to circumvent nature's handicaps. An instance is the reported plan of G. S. Hinkle, superintendent of construction work on the Lolo pass road project, on the border between Montana and Idaho where the highway crosses the Rocky mountains.

With snow still two and a half feet deep and the beginning of the season's construction operations planned, Mr. Hinkle decided to send thirty horses over the mountains in snowshoes.

Boards about a foot square are fastened to the feet of the horses. These, Mr. Hinkle says, will be sufficient to support the animals' weight, and it is said they quickly learn to handle the unaccustomed footwear.

Fred Morrell, district forester for the northwestern area of Montana, says his men occasionally find it necessary to resort to the same expedient in crossing the summit of the range.

Desert Auto Transit Grows in Mesopotamia

Bagdad.—Tourists are showing an increasing fondness for traveling over the desert in automobiles. Various cross-desert services have recorded a total of 1,000,000 miles of transit.

Something of a mild motor boom is beginning in Bagdad. New hotels are going up, one English and one French, and better tourist business is confidently expected. Nevertheless, general business is far from satisfactory. Poverty among the working classes is acute in both town and country.

Since the opening of the desert line between Syria and Mesopotamia two routes have been followed by automobiles. In leaving Damascus, one follows a straight line through the desert to Bagdad, while the second route points slightly to the north to pass through Palmyra, the well-known historic site, which attracts thousands of tourists, and then comes direct to Bagdad.
